U. S. Balkan Offer Hit By Vishinsky as 'Insult'

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 6—(UP)—Soviet Vice Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky Monday rejected an American compromise on the Balkan problem, and made the fresh charge that the United States was turning Greece into a U. S. military base.

Vishinsky angrily rose to his feet to shout that the American offer was a "horsetrade," as insulting as "a horsewhip across the face."

The United States, he said, offered to compromise only because it did not believe its own charges that Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria were guilty of aggression against Greece.

"The whole world now knows that the accusations were not worth a hoot," Vishinsky shouted, waving his arms in the crowded committee room.

The United States had agreed to drop the charges against Greece's northern neighbors if they and the rest of the UN would agree to co-operate with a proposed UN Commission to watch Balkan borders.

Vishinsky told the 57-Nation Political Committee the United States made the "aggression" charges against Greece's northern neighbors—all Soviet-dominated—just to make a bargaining point, and finally set up the UN Commission.

"Truth and honor cannot be subjected to horsetrades," Vishinsky said. "Truth and honor cannot be split like adverbs—they must go together. This is an effort to transform UN into a tool of unholy design."

His refusal of the compromise offer came extemporaneously at the end of a two-hour tirade against Anglo-American action in the Balkans.

Vishinsky demanded that the United States and Great Britain withdraw all troops and instructors—military and civilian—from Greece, letting the Greek people work out their own fate.

Vishinsky in his first full-dress statement on the Balkans, protested the Anglo-American case against Greece's Northern neighbors was based on testimony that was ridiculous, absurd, rotten and lying. He spoke as nine European Communist parties banded together for the specific purpose of fighting American foreign policy in Greece and elsewhere.

Vishinsky said Soviet-dominated

'Offender' Print File City's Goal

With an enlargement of his quarters soon to get under way, Capt. Ben W. Seabrook, head of the City Police Identification Bureau, has launched a movement to fingerprint and photograph all persons arrested.

At the present time, only those who are bound over to the State courts and suspicious characters are photographed and fingerprinted by the police, but under Capt. Seabrook's plan, all petty offenders such as drunks, disorderly persons and those arrested in dives would be photographed and fingerprinted before being released from custody.

"At the present time our quarters are not large enough to accommodate such a rush," Capt. Seabrook said, "but with the larger quarters, it could be done."

Capt. Seabrook pointed out that on several occasions police have found a criminal they were searching for lodged at police headquarters under a minor charge and under a fictitious name, or had learned that the person sought for had slipped through their fingers by being arrested on a minor charge, giving a fictitious name.

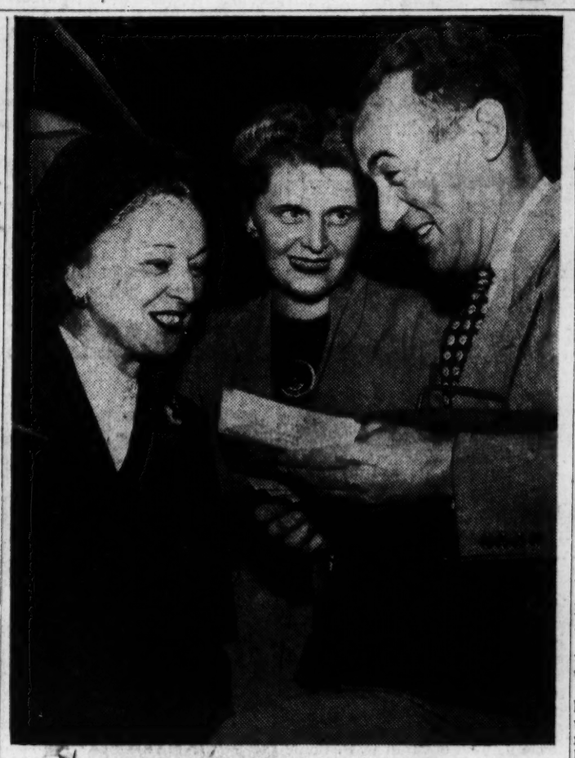

"Fingerprinting and photographing all people actually arrested will simply be a more thorough job of police work," Capt. Seabrook said. "The way it is now, it reminds me of a person searching with his hands for a tiny but precious jewel lost in a pile of sand. If the person would take a fine screen and sift the sand he would be bound to find the precious stone."

Police records reveal approximately 40,000 people are actually taken into custody by city policemen each year and taken to police headquarters. They are confined for periods ranging from only a few minutes to several days. The vast majority are released by posting collateral or making bond after being confined for three or four hours.

Under the plan as advocated by Capt. Seabrook, the prisoner would first be registered with the Station Lieutenant, as at present, then turned over to the identification bureau. It would take only a few moments to photograph and fingerprint the prisoner, and would not cause any delay in the release on bond or collateral of the prisoner.

"And while the prisoner is making his arrangements to be re-

Savannah in Path Of Hurricane

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 6—(UP)—Towering tides washed up by an unexpected tropical storm Monday gnawed out more chunks from the ocean front outside Jacksonville, already undermined by last week's $1,000,000 "flash" gales, and threatened to flood business districts.

The storm gained intensity and headed toward Savannah.

The tides were curling over battered seawalls and eroding dunes at Atlantic, Jacksonville and Neptune Beaches, east and southeast of Jacksonville, and at the old Spanish fort town of Fernandina, to the northeast.

The Weather Bureau at Miami announced late Monday that a large squall front moving over from the Bahamas had reached the proportions of a moderate tropical storm and carried winds up to 50 miles an hour near its center. Northeast storm warnings were hauled up from Mayport, Fla., to Cape Hatteras.

At Jacksonville Beach, City Manager Walter Bartholomew said the waves had breashed a 150-foot section of the beachfront there, but a dragline of sandbags was being used to plug the break.

A garage at Hobson Goodloe's home "dropped in the hole" when waves washed under it, Bartholomew said, and most of the sandbagging and bracing done after last week's tides "is lost."

Seventy-five feet of seawall at another point on Jacksonville was leaning, and expected to topple during the night. The Navy had sent 220 men to man the beach defenses, was sending 150 more and the Coast Guard had 50 men busy sandbagging.

W. H. Melton, President of the City Council at Fernandina, where there is no seawall, said all of the town's 25 beach residences were in danger Monday night.

"They are on the seaward side of the highway, which already is undermined at places," Melton said. "The beach has almost been flattened out, and the water comes right up to the houses now. The piling of a small cottage gave way and it caved in."

Chief of Police J. R. Jarboe, of Neptune Beach, said "unprecedented" tides at that resort had

Grim City Observes Fire Week

By ALBERT RILEY

Atlanta began observation Monday of National Fire Prevention Week, and no City in the nation had a more compelling reason for recognizing the vital necessity of precautions to insure safety from fire.

It was exactly ten months ago today that flames roared through the Winecoff Hotel in America's worst hotel fire on record.

The gutted hulk of the Winecoff still stands as a grim and accusing reminder of that disaster that claimed 119 lives and injured scores of others.

With the memory of that terrible morning still fresh in their minds, 500 building engineers, watchmen and janitors gathered in the Sky Room of the Municipal Auditorium Monday to begin a three-day school in fire prevention.

Sponsored jointly by the Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Fire Department, the classes opened with talks by Fire Chief C. C. Styron and George L. Swan, Asst. Chief Engineer of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The building engineers, watchmen and janitors heard a plea for co-operation from Fred B. Moore, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention Committee, and a discussion of heating plants by W. E. Tidmore, Director of the City's Smoke Abatement Bureau. Dr. Harold B. Friedman, Chemical Director of the Zep Manufacturing Company, spoke on "Chemistry of Combustion," and his listeners saw a motion picture film on "Chemistry of Fire."

Hotels, hospitals, department stores, manufacturing plants and large apartment houses of Atlanta were represented at the opening day's session.

On Tuesday, Fire Inspector J. F. Seagraves will conduct a three-hour discussion of "Common Fire Hazards versus Common Sense." Wednesday's program includes a talk by Fire Inspector J. W. Pittman on "Use and Care of Fire Extinguishing Equipment"; a discussion of "Organization for Fire Safety," by Fire Marshal Harry Phillips, and a final round-up by Inspector Seagraves.

Additional films to be seen include "Crimes of Carelessness," "How Fires Start in Industry," "Fight That Fire," and "A Word to the Wise."

Yankees Cop Series, Downing Dodgers, 5-2

By GRANTLAND RICE

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(NANA)—It couldn't go on forever. In a series that broke almost every known record, good and bad, the Yankees beat the Dodgers, 5 to 2, in the seventh game to become the 1947 champions of baseball's world.

Riding along on the tidal-wave relief pitching of Joe Page, who, with the help of a game-ending double play, retired the last 15 men at bat, the Yankees came from behind to overtake and finally wreck Burt Shotton's bedraggled pitching staff down the golden stretch.

The Dodgers outfielded, outhit, outpitched and outscored, carried the battle to the final inning of the seventh game with a bulldog grip on fate that the Yankees couldn't shake loose until Page stepped into the picture and saved the day. A total of 71,548 spectators paid to see this final game which broke all attendance and cash records with a seven-game attendance close to the 400,000 mark.

Over $700,000 in additional cash came to the two clubs through Cookie Lavagetto's famous ninth-inning double in the fourth game, where otherwise the series would have ended at Ebbets Field in a five-game romp. Here was the most famous and the greatest cash-producing hit ever known.

It was the ever-hustling, scrappy Dodgers, with no pitcher able to go beyond five innings in any series game, who got the jump in this last stand. In the second inning they stormed into Frank Shea, attempting his third start with only a day's rest, for two runs.

In this—the Dodgers' only run-producing inning of the day—Hermanski tripled, Edwards singled, Furillo singled and Shea, who had won two series games, left for the showers as one-hit Bill Bevens came in. Jorgensen then doubled—and that double was all the Dodgers had to offer on the way to the wire.

The Yankees got a run back in the second, and they got two more in the fourth off Hal Gregg, to take the lead at 3 to 2. Gregg, like all other Dodger starting pitchers, had little to offer after the first few innings.

Leading, 3 to 2, at the start of the fifth, 1947's fantastic series came to a sudden end when Bucky Harris called Page to the mound. Up to this spot Page had been far from any heroic figure. He was none too hot in the first game,

Meatless Menus Set Here Today

Georgia's Chief Executive and his family will take the lead today in what is apparently to be a statewide tightening of belts.

It's "meatless Tuesday" at the Governor's Mansion—and what's more, a chickenless and eggless Thursday is coming, Acting Gov. Thompson decreed Monday night in answer to President Truman's nationwide food conservation appeal.

"I think the President's program is fine," Thompson said. "We are wasting food in this country when we should be saving more. The Governor's Mansion will go on exactly the same schedule the President asked of the rest of the country."

Meanwhile, Atlanta restaurant and hotel operators and railroad dining car operators gave every indication of responding wholeheartedly to the request which will mean: 1. No meat on Tuesday. 2. No poultry or poultry products on Thursday. 3. Bread and butter served in public eating places only on request.

Atlanta Hotel Association's advisory committee held a special meeting to indorse the President's program and Dick Florrid, executive secretary, said he felt confident the State Association, comprising 400 operators, would follow the recommendations. Eight members of the Advisory Committee and J. D. Walton, First Vice President, promised to put the recommendations into practice as rapidly as menus and meat supplies could be arranged.

C. McD. Davis, President of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, said his railroad would eliminate meats from its Tuesday dining car menus starting today and eggs and poultry will be missing from Thursday menus until further notice.

Sample menus prepared for public eating places by the Atlanta Restaurant Association Advisory Committee offered for breakfast: Poached eggs, scrambled eggs, cheese toasts, chicken livers on toast, salmon patties, cottage fried potatoes, broiled Spanish mackerel, fried grits and syrup, waffles, hot cakes, apple sauce, stewed prunes.

For lunch and dinner: Fresh vegetable soup, cream of tomato soup, fried fillet of haddock, baked Spanish mackerel, deviled fresh crab, shrimp creole and rice, chicken pot pie and biscuits, chow mein and noodles, candied yams, macaroni au gratin, baked beans and cheese omelette, fish cakes and spaghetti and green pea omelette.

Sandy Springs' Water City or DeKalb Duty?

Whether the City of Atlanta Water Works System or that of DeKalb County will supply water to Sandy Spring remained in doubt Monday following a conference between City and Fulton officials.

Mayor Hartsfield, who with Councilman James Jackson and Water Works Manager Paul Weir represented the City, said the City government was fully aware of its responsibilities to supply water to the metropolitan area, but that expansion must rest on an economic basis.

"The City cannot afford to extend water service merely for political reasons, he said.

The Mayor said he further considered it unsound for the County government to spend money for laying water mains to tap on existing mains.

"We are expending about a million dollars now," said the Mayor, "in expanding the system. Laying of mains is only one item in water service. You must consider pumping, sources of supply and other engineering features."

However, asked directly if he would be satisfied to have DeKalb County supply water to Sandy Springs, the Mayor said he preferred first to have City engineers study whether or not DeKalb could supply the water on an economic basis.

Councilman Jackson estimated it would cost more than $300,000 to supply Sandy Springs with water via the main built to the Bell Bomber Plant.

Hartsfield pointed to the bomber plant main as an example of ill-advised spending by the City Government. He said a former mayor had saddled a $300,000 debt on City taxpayers which should have been paid by the Army Air Forces.

"We are going to extend water lines," said the Mayor, wherever it is economical to do so. We foresaw the necessity for expansion long before you did. We foresaw the water level would fall in suburban areas and that wells in those areas would fail. Had we not expanded the Atlanta system during the depression, you would have had no bomber plant at Marietta and no Ford plant at Hapeville."

Cloudy, Cooler, Rain—But No Overcoat Needed

You can keep that overcoat off another couple of days.

The weather man late Monday night forecast cloudy and slightly cooler weather with occasional light rain for today, with a high of 75 degrees and a low of 58. Wednesday will be slightly warmer with a high of 80 and a low of 59, compared to Monday's reading of 77 and 56.

TUG'S MINESWEEPERS LOST IN PACIFIC

Misfortune Stalked the Decks As the Grimm Put Out to Sea

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 6—(AP)—Misfortune Stalked Voyage—336-2 The voyage of the Edward M. Grimm took rank Monday with memorable nightmares of the sea.

Airmen from Palmyra atoll supplied the latest unhappy details Monday, and the saga remained incomplete. Here is the story, as pieced together from their accounts, from Navy information and from reports of crewmen and the tug's resourceful but unlucky skipper, Kenneth Ainslie, of Sydney, Australia:

The tug was towing four surplus minesweepers from Charleston, S. C., to Manila for use by the Luzon Stevedoring Company. All went well until Sept. 24, when for unknown reasons the tug ran out of fuel near Palmyra, more than 1,000 miles south of here in one of the least-frequented areas of the Pacific.

By draining oil from the cookstove, Ainslie got under way again and made it to Palmyra, but had to cut the minesweepers adrift outside. Powerless, they were lashed together. Three watchmen were left aboard them with food and water for 10 days. They had a lifeboat and some "iron" rations, also.

Refueling at the small Civic Aeronautics station on Palmyra, the tug returned to pick up the sweepers. They had vanished. The tug, hunting them in widening circles, ran aground on a reef where the chart showed 150 feet of water.

After a long effort, Ainslee got his ship free and resumed the search. Then the distilling apparatus broke down and there was no fresh water.

The skipper rigged tarpaulins, caught rainwater, and kept going for a week without luck.

Finally he returned to Palmyra and appealed to the Navy for help. While he was ashore the crew caught and ate tropical fish in the lagoon.

All 36 of them promptly became violently ill. One died Saturday night. He was Oiler Catalino Mirasol, of Manila.

Eight others remained in such serious condition that two doctors

Grain Exchanges Boost Margin to 33 1-3 Pct.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—(AP)—Pledges of support for President Truman's "self-denial" campaign to help feed hungry Europe poured in from many parts of the nation Monday, and the Chicago Board of Trade complied with a renewed Government request for higher marginal requirements designed to curb speculation in grain.

Directors of the Chicago mart, as well as those of Kansas City and Minneapolis, voted to raise down-payment requirements in speculative grain futures to 33 1-3 percent.

This was the figure requested by Mr. Truman. It is about double the present requirement.

Government officials have said speculation tended to boost prices, but grain market men replied that the real reason for high prices was Government buying for export.

The Board's action came within a few hours after the Commodity Exchange Commission, which

Council Votes Slum Probe Fund, Sets Stage for Expressway Links

City Council Monday afternoon voted unanimously to implement the five-year campaign to eliminate 40,000 slum and substandard dwelling units in Atlanta and set the stage for Fulton County to construct two major links in a $25,000,000 traffic improvement program for the metropolitan area.

Ald. Ed A. Gilliam, Chairman of Council's Finance Committee, offered a resolution providing $5,485 in salaries from Nov. 1, through December, for 12 new employees for the Health and Building Inspection Departments, to begin inspections as of Nov. 1 provided the personnel can be recruited by that time.

Councilman John A. White, Chairman of a Special Slum Clearance Committee, hailed the allocation as a "victory in a 10-year fight to do something about slums," and added "we are going to do something about them this time by pacing the remainder of the Nation in a practicable program for their elimination."

As Chairman of Council's Public Works Committee, Gilliam also offered the resolution agreeing to Fulton County's immediate acquisition of rights-of-way, establishment of routes, and the letting of contracts for construction of the Vine Street projection from Hemphill Avenue southward and of the southern leg of the main North-South expressway.

It is expected that the two projects will cost upwards of $20,000,000 on existing real estate and construction costs. The action is the first allocation of definite projects to the County, and has the sanction of city and County officials and members of the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Bond Commission, which is co-ordinating the traffic program effort.

Council also:

1. Passed ordinances permitting liquor stores to open at 8 a. m. on week days in Atlanta instead of the present 9 a. m., and eliminating residence requirements for recruiting new members for the police force. It sent to the Ordinance and Legislation Committee for a public hearing a proposal by Councilman John T. Marler to restrict issuance of any new permits to sell wine and beer to the inner fire limits. Ald. Roscoe Ailor, Chairman of the ordinance group, said he would announce the date for the hearing later.

2. Provided $20,000 to purchase food for city prison inmates for the remainder of the year; $5,000

State Pays $674,500 on Jekyll Isle; Announces Plans for Improvement

Having presented nine checks totaling $674,500 to representatives of Northern millionaire owners, the State of Georgia apparently owned all but $500 worth of controversial Jekyll island late Monday night while Acting Gov. Thompson disclosed plans to relocate U. S. Highway 17 to link the proposed State park area with the mainland at Brunswick.

At Brunswick, H. F. DuBignon, Clerk of Glynn Superior Court, received shortly after 8 p. m., the State's check for $675,000 to purchase the island according to a Court decree.

Complying with the Court's order for "instanter" action, DuBignon immediately issued eight checks, totalling $674,500, he said, and presented them to Brunswick attorneys representing Jekyll's owners. Also in compliance with the Court decree, DuBigdon said, he withheld a ninth check, totalling only $500, made out to the heirs of Sylvester Montford, deceased, pending clarification of their title to the property.

Meanwhile, in Atlanta, Acting Gov. Thompson described the plans for re-locating the U. S. Highway 17 to link Jekyll to the mainland, the building of a new bridge over the Brunswick River and construction of elaborate facilities for youth organizations on Georgia's first public beach park.

In a dramatic development at Brunswick, DuBignon kept open his office until two Assistant Attorneys General arrived from Atlanta with the $675,000 check while officials of the American National Bank of Brunswick stood by to honor it. DuBignon named the two Assistant Attorneys General as Wright Lipford and A. J. Hartley. Immediately on their arrival, the Court Clerk said, and honoring of the check by the bank, he issued the eight individual checks and presented them to waiting lawyers. He named the lawyers as Reese, Bennett and Gulbert, Edward B. Liles and Charles L. Gowen and said they accepted the checks.

DuBignon said he presented them with the following checks: Bernon S. Prentice, $14,590.56; Bankers' Trust Company, $11,306.25; New York Trust Company, $396,750; Mrs. Annie L. Wright, $500; L. R. Condon, $600; Mrs. Cornelia Maurice Wilkinson, Mrs. Emily Maurice Dall, Miss Marga-

TAKES A 'WALK'

Ex-GI Ends Custody Tilt Over Son

LONDON, Oct. 6—(UP)—Scotland Yard reported Monday that Curtis Elmer Vincent, a former GI from Greensboro, N. C., had settled a dispute with his British bride over the custody of their infant son by taking the baby for a "walk" and boarding a plane for New York.

The mother, Mrs. Marjorie Vincent, of Leeds, reported the case to police when Vincent failed to return with the 10-months-old boy after being gone an hour.

Mrs. Vincent told police she suspected the baby had been kidnaped because her husband followed her back to England recently to plead in vain for her return to the United States with him and the child. She said she left America because she didn't like it there.

Scotland Yard said it started a search for Vincent, but he had boarded a British Overseas Airways Corporation plane at Heathrow Airport near London Sunday night which arrived in New York Monday.

Mrs. Vincent, 21, in Leeds was informed by police that her husband and son arrived in New York Monday morning.

NEW ROUTE TO JEKYLL—This map shows the approximate location of the connecting road from a relocated U. S. Route 17 to Jekyll Island. The solid line is the old U. S. Route 18. The irregularly dotted line going inland shows how this route will be moved under present plans. Long dots represent the new connection which will be built to serve Jekyll.

JEKYLL

ret S. Maurice and Miss Marian B. Maurice, $20,000; the Jekyll Annex Association, $18,000, and the Jekyll Island Club, $153,353.19.

While the State officials sped to Brunswick with check, Rep. W. H. Lovett, of Dublin, follower of Herman Talmadge, announced he would seek to enjoin its presentation. DuBignon said, however, that no such move had been made.

Judge Gordon Knox, of Brunswick Judicial Circuit, on Sunday announced signing the consent decree permitting the State to condemn the property for $675,000.

Anxious to have the beach park ready for public use as soon as possible, Thompson wrote C. A. Williams, Director of the State Department of Corrections, thanking him for offering convict labor to make repairs on the island's roads and bridges and make general improvements.

The Acting Governor asked that convicts be assigned to this project immediately.

Construction of a land access to Jekyll will involve re-location of U. S. Route 17, known as the coastal highway, Thompson said. At present the highway passes through Brunswick and then bends a considerable distance inland to cross Turtle River and South Brunswick River.

Bridges over these two rivers are wooden and must be replaced, the State Highway Department reported. A permanent bridge will be placed across Brunswick River at Brunswick and Highway 17 straightened through the marshes on the other side of the river, rather than bending inland.

From here a connecting link will go to Jekyll Island. This link connecting U. S. 17 to the island will not cost in excess of $500,000 including a bridge over Jekyll Creek, Thompson reported.

He estimated that the connecting link and part of the new U. S. 17 which will connect with the Waycross Highway will be finished in 12 months. This will make Jekyll accessible from the south. The new bridge over Brunswick River can be built in about two years, Thompson said, making Jekyll accessible from the north.

"I have no doubt we will be able to obtain Federal funds for the relocation of U. S. 17 and the extension leading to Jekyll Island," Thompson commented. "The Federal Bureau of Roads has a policy of aiding construction of roads to State parks and money and distance will be saved by relocating U. S. 17.

"Some have suggested a toll bridge, but we would not be able to get Federal aid for a toll bridge," he added, "besides, I'm opposed to toll bridges."

He pointed out that U. S. Route 17 in the vicinity of Brunswick either must be repaired or re-located. Re-location will save money, he emphasized.

Thompson said State funds for these highway projects would come from money set aside for highway construction.

"We hope to get the Federal funds for the bridge across Brunswick River from the urban allocation. This allocation cannot be used for primary, secondary or rural roads," Thompson said.

As Thompson laid the groundwork to make Jekyll accessible to the public, he sent letters to 4-H Club leaders inviting them to select sites on the island for camping and convention facilities.

"There are 113,000 members in this organization alone in Georgia," the Acting Governor commented. "I hope much of the Island will be developed for use by young people of Georgia."

When the new part of U. S. Route 17 is completed, it will be nearer to Jekyll than St. Simons Island and Sea Island are to present Route 17. The distance to Jekyll will be 5.2 miles. Highway 17 is 9.1 miles to Sea Island and 6.4 miles to St. Simons Island.

Lovett, Middle Georgia millionaire and Talmadgeite who is seeking to halt the purchase, once before tried to block the transaction, but Fulton Superior Court Judge Bond Almand ruled he had no cause for action at that time.

"We hope to keep facilities open the year around," he said, adding it will be popular in the Winter with tourists going to Florida down the inland waterway. Thompson said approximately 7,000 travel this way each year.

"I do not expect Jekyll Island during my administration or the administration of my successor to be developed to full capacity," Thompson declared. "It is the kind of project that will grow. I know it is a good financial investment for the State as well as sound investment toward improving the health and education of our people."

Huge 3-State Soil Plan Proposed at Columbus

CONSTITUTION STATE NEWS SERVICE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6—A plan for promoting a co-ordinated soil and water control program in the Chattahoochee-Flint-Apalachicola watershed has been announced in a joint statement Monday by the presidents of the Chattahoochee Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia Association of Soil Conservation District Supervisors.

R. H. Gregory, the conservation official, and J. W. Woodruff, senior, Valley Chamber of Commerce head, said their goal will be "obtaining a co-ordinated land treatment program on all lands within the Apalachicola-Chattahoochee watershed including the Flint."

The program includes formation of an Alabama-Georgia-Florida Inter-District Association of soil conservation district supervisors and the affiliation of the Tri-State conservation group with the Chattahoochee Valley Chamber of Commerce, which represents 37 counties in the three States.

Gregory, of Chatsworth, and Woodruff, of Columbus, said the regular district soil and water conservation programs can help stabilize soil, but that a Federally authorized and financed control program "can do much more." Officials of the two organizations will meet soon to complete plans for affiliation.

While full provision is made in Christian Science for specific treatment for the sick, many people have been healed, not a few of them when their condition had seemed hopeless, simply through thoughtful reading of literature available at Christian Science Reading Rooms.

Release from other dangers and difficulties, and increased capability, usefulness, and happiness have come in like manner for multitudes; and Christian Science shows that such experience is equally available for all.

SOUTH'S LONGEST DIVIDED, FOUR-LANE HIGHWAY IS Concrete

THE 27-mile concrete four-lane highway between Greenville and Spartanburg, South Carolina, is the South's longest divided-lane road. Part of the pavement is 17 to 21 years old. It provides a safe, fast and convenient route for the heavy bus, truck and passenger car traffic between these two industrial cities.

Concrete pavement is a good investment for your gasoline tax money.

Linder Warns Of Higher Taxes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—(AP)—If farm prices are forced down and the national income reduced, then taxes will have to be raised, Tom Linder, Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture declared here Monday.

"If you cut farm income $5,000,000,000, that means the national income will be reduced $35,000,000,000 over all," Linder said, adding: "and its a known fact that we have to keep the national income up or increase taxes to pay our Governmental debt."

Linder was one of four State Agriculture Commissioners who joined earlier in a statement that the solution to the world food problem" is increased production."

They held, however, that "you can't get higher production without higher prices," and said that farm prices had advanced no more than other commodities, such as automobiles.

Besides Linder, those joining in the statement were Commissioners J. E. McDonald, Texas; R. A. Trovatten, Minnesota, and Math Dahl, North Dakota.

leased, we could study his fingerprints and determine if he has any previous record," Capt. Seabrook said. "This will enable the arresting officer to more intelligently present his case when the prisoner is brought before the recorder. If there is any record, we will have it, and can furnish it to the arresting officer."

The fingerprint system, Capt. Seabrook said, would soon drive the chronic drunks off the streets. He pointed out that even though these individuals gave fictitious names, their fingerprint records would tell on them, and police could soon go into the State courts with offenders of this type and ask that they be sentenced to the penitentiary on vagrancy charges.

Under Capt. Seabrook's plan, persons given a court summons would not be fingerprinted.

"We would only print those who are actually arrested and taken to police headquarters," Capt. Seabrook said.

At the present time, the Identification Bureau has approximately 300,000 fingerprints and photographs on file. Last year, nearly 8,000 photographs and fingerprints were made by the Bureau.

Capt. Seabrook has been assured that a large room immediately adjoining the present Identification Bureau, will soon be made available for the Department. The plan which Capt. Seabrook contemplates will not require any additional equipment, he said, but may entail the employment of additional clerks. At the present time, the Bureau is open 18 hours per day, but would have to remain open constantly under the proposal.

RUSSIA

Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria consistently had shown peaceful intentions toward Greece. But, he protested, Greece had had aggressive designs on her Northern neighbors and had gone before the Paris Peace Conference to demand nearly one-fourth of Bulgaria's territory.

Vishinsky's 35-page statement, delivered to the UN Political Committee, highlighted a heavy day of East-West dueling, with little nation delegates—caught in the middle—growing more jittery by the hour.

Developments included:

1. Free Press—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt eloquently defended the American press against Russia's warmongering charges, warning that the United States will fight every Soviet attempt to have UN limit press freedom. Mrs. Roosevelt conceded that the American press has faults, but added that the disadvantages of a controlled press would be "overwhelming." Yugoslavia countered with a new resolution which in effect, proposed censorship of all newspapers, news agencies, radio broadcasts and news reels to stop any statement criticizing foreign governments.

2. Colonies—The Ukraine and White Russia, both members of the Soviet Union, demanded UN action to change the world's colonial system "radically." Their fire was centered on Great Britain, which they accused of imposing "terrible misery, hunger and epidemics" on their colonials.

3. Palestine—F. M. Jamali, of Iraq, asked the United States to prevent Americans from aiding uncertified Jewish immigration to Palestine. He complained that while individual Americans financed "terrorism and illegal immigration," the United States Government complained against outside interference in Greece. These policies, he said, are inconsistent.

4. Food—Director John Boyd Orr, of the UN Food and Agricultural Organization, asked the current UN Federal Assembly to set up a "Super-Marshall Plan" to feed all the world. With the current Marshall Plan to aid Western Europe as a nucleus, UN should sponsor other regional plans, all under overall UN direction, Orr said. He added that most of the world's people were more interested in food than in political or idealogical differences. He advised UN to concentrate on what the world needed. Said Orr: "If nothing is done agout the present world fod shortage, something is sure to happen."

In his statement to the Political Committee, Vishinsky flatly rejected an American resolution to blame Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria for aiding the Greek guerrillas who are fighting Greek Government forces.

risen within 20 feet of the beach ridge of dunes protecting the business district. Jarboe had appealed by radio for "every able-bodied citizen to come immediately with at least five sandbags—more if possible" to bulwark the dunes. The beaches already were deeply gullied from the Sept. 28 storm and subsequent tides.

Ironically, the Jacksonville area barely felt the outer winds of the great hurricane which swept across Southern Florida and the Northern Gulf Coast, yet has suffered heavily from gales and tides in the hurricane's backwash.

The Weather Bureau located the new storm center at 150 miles east of New Smyrna Beach, Fla., and described it as a "broad, flat" center moving slowly northward about 10 to 12 miles an hour.

It was expected to continue north or northwesterly, bring gales up to 45 miles an hour and gusts up to 50 between Jacksonville to Cape Hatteras.

Military storm-hunter planes were watching the disturbance "very closely," the Weather Bureau said.

Three inches of rain had fallen in the Jacksonville area in 24 hours, adding to the flood danger. Steady winds of about 27 miles an hour, with gusts going over 30, were blowing through the city.

for employment of experts to assist the city in resisting an effort of the Georgia Power Company to increase traction fares 33 1-3 percent; $11,700 for the widening of the north side of Hunter Street from Forsyth Street to the Spring Street viaduct, and $2,500 for repairs at the Municipal Auditorium.

3. Set up $80,000 from bond funds to purchase a 15-acre tract of land near the Crogman School for a Negro park. Ald. Lee Evans, Chairman of Council's Parks Committee, said the tract was bounded on the north by Fletcher Street, the east by East Street, the south by a line approximately 100 feet north of University Avenue, and on the west by Windsor Street. He added it was an admirably located site for the long-sought development.

4. Ordered City Clerk Joe L. Richardson to collect $600 a day from Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows, Inc., for a three-day stand Oct. 27-29 at Lakewood Park. There has been some question as to whether the city could collect a circus license from show owners because the exhibition will be on city-owned Lakewood, which is leased to the Southeastern Fair Association.

5. Approved Mayor Hartsfield's appointment of Aldermen Lee Evans, Gilliam and Dowse Donaldson to investigate the system for issuing all types of construction permits and of inspection services. It also sent to the committee a proposal by Councilman White to merge the Plumbing Division under the Building Inspector. A third action in connection with the matter empowered Evans' Committee to issue subpoenas for witnesses and to compel the submission of any needed records. Evans said he would announce committee sessions later.

6. Referred to the joint study of the Water and Sewer Committees a request from the Board of Education that the city provide water and sewage facilities for Bush Mountain and Armour Negro elementary schools. The schools now get their water from privately-owned wells, and recent tests showed B coli bacilli.

7. Sent to the Board of Zoning Appeals a petition for use of a dwelling at the intersection of Fowler and Fifth Streets as a fraternity house for Sigma Phi Epsilon. David LeBey, Alumni Secretary of the Fraternity, urged permission for use of the house by Georgia Tech students. A hearing has been set for 3 p. m. Oct. 17 on the second floor of the City Hall.

8. Asked the Health and Sanitation Committee to hold a public hearing on an ordinance to outlaw the raising of hogs and pigs and the keeping of other animals and fowls inside the City limits. Councilman Howard Haire, Committee Chairman, said the hearing would be Oct. 17 with the time to be announced later.

9. Facetiously passed a resolution decrying the lengthening women's skirts and asking that City Atty. Jack C. Savage prepare an ordinance establishing a "hemline-norm" and providing a "suitable penalty for violation." Haire said he was interested in preserving the "see-line rather than in establishing a hemline."

10. Sent to the City Planning Commission a petition by scores of residents that the name of Pulliam Street, from Georgia Avenue to Ridge Avenue, be changed to Southside Drive, S. W. Residents in the area objected to implications they lived in a slum section when City Building Inspectors ordered properties on other stretches improved or razed.

were flown to Palmyra from Honolulu Sunday and the sick men were brought to Queens Hospital Monday. They included five Filipinos, two residents of Hawaii and Philip Catanina, of 2101 Green St.

Boatswain Joseph Pinarosa, of Hilo, one of those stricken, said he had caught the fish which apparently were poisonous but was at a loss to explain it, as he had been at Palmyra during the war and was familiar with known poisonous varieties.

The Air Force meanwhile had to fly cargoes of food and other supplies Monday to the CAA station on Palmyra, its resources having been exhausted by the unexpected visitors.

The Hawaiian Sea Frontier, which is directing the search for the missing minesweepers, had 11 planes in the air and the patrol craft PCE 881 working out of Palmyra, but there was no trace of the vessels.

Naval men said currents around Palmyra might carry them 40 miles a day, so that after 13 days they might be more than 500 miles from where they were last seen.

Late Monday squalls ripped across the sea, cutting visibility to nearly zero, and radar was employed to continue the hunt.

U. S. Lack of Unity Cited As Danger to 'Way of Life'

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, President of Washington and Lee University, was honor guest Monday night at a meeting of the University's Atlanta Alumni Association.

At the meeting a motion picture revealing the expansion program of the University was shown. Dr. Gaines spoke briefly, urging the raising of a bi-centennial fund to erect a war memorial for Washington and Lee alumni and students who were killed in the recent war.

Early in the day Dr. Gaines told the Atlanta Rotary Club that America must re-establish national unity if the American way of life is to be preserved and State Socialism avoided.

Dr. Gaines said there has been too much "fragmentation" in the United States.

"We too often think," he explained, "in terms of labor and capital, veteran and non-veteran, Yankee and Rebel, Jew and Gentile, white and Negro."

He said the country has become so dispersed that national unity, which should bind the nation together, is lacking. Each group or individual thinks too much in terms of his group or himself, he said, adding:

"When we consider the tax bill, we ask how it will effect 'my' income. When we consider a tariff bill, we ask what effect it will have on 'my' investment . . . we need to discard narrow thinking and return to the Holy enthusiasm in which our democracy was born."

Dr. Gaines said America's conception of democracy must be "enriched and redefined." A member of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and a trustee of the Freedom Train, now touring the United States, Dr. Gaines said this country conceivably could lose its democratic heritage.

"Freedom rarely is lost from outside aggression," he said, "but it is sold within for something the people think better."

Dr. Gaines said democracy meant a guarantee of opportunity—and America's job is to make significant and inviting opportunities available to all. He pointed out that only three out of ten fourth grade students go to high school, and only one out of the 10 goes to college.

He said the three who attend high school would become the leaders, but the destiny of America lies in the hands of the other seven. "How far," he asked, "have we stretched opportunities in this country?"

Dr. Gaines was introduced by Dr. J. R. McCain, President of Agnes Scott College.

Hanns Eisler, Wife Are Faced With Deportation

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6—(INS) Hollywood Song Writer Hanns Eisler and his wife, Louise, were arrested Monday on deportation proceedings after surrendering to U. S. Immigration Officer W. A. Carmichael.

The brother of Gerhart Eisler, who had been identified as the No. 1 Communist Agent in the United States, denied all the charges against him. He told newsmen:

"In 1933, in a Paris newspaper, I read where Hitler had placed a price on my head along with several other artists. I never dreamed that a similar situation could arise in the United States, a country that I love."

Specifically the warrants were issued upon allegations that the immigration visa under which they entered this country had been obtained by fraud and misrepresentation and Eisler had sworn he was not a member of the Communist Party.

Dr. Middleton Discusses Tour

Reporting on his recent tour of European nations, Dr. James W. Middleton, pastor of the Atlanta First Baptist Church, said Monday that "unconditional surrender implied unconstitutional obligation and responsibility upon Christian America."

Dr. Middleton addressed the Atlanta Christian Council, composed of lay and clerical representatives of 62 Atlanta churches. Needs of the European people for food, clothing and help in general are intense, the pastor said.

"The obligations in Europe constitutes Christianity's greatest opportunity," Dr. Middleton said.

"Humanism, science and quasi-psychology have brought the world to its worst, making way for Christianity to be at its best, Dr. Middleton declared.

Opportunity System Threatened, Industrialist Tells Kiwanians

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

The free enterprise system, under which America has progressed for 170 years, is being threatened today by "confused thinking" on the part of the people of the United States, Georgia Kiwanians were told Monday night.

Warren Whitney, Birmingham industrialist and nationally-known authority on industrial relations, declared the American people were beginning to doubt the soundness of the competitive system and thus were in danger of losing "the only system which has brought happiness to the masses."

The free enterprise system, said Whitney, is not free.

"It was first purchased by conquest," he explained, "and it has been defended many times since by bloodshed and sacrifice. The last down payment—World War II—should remind us that it is worth keeping."

In a forceful address at the State Kiwanis Convention at the Ansley Hotel, Whitney discussed the benefits of and threats to the free enterprise or opportunity system.

He pointed out that "the only time a gleam enters the average European's eye is when he speaks of opportunities in America." And he deplored the doubt in the American's mind about the same opportunity system coveted by the European.

"America was founded on the belief that all men are created equal," he said, "but in this country men live and produce and add to our economy as individuals. Every man has an opportunity to become what he will."

Whitney said the representative form of government "is no longer representative when any group—labor or management—can purge the people's chosen representatives." A return to the fundamentals of the opportunity system is needed, he said.

Socialism is a definite possibility, Whitney said, warning that "if it comes, it will come from within." He summed up his opinion of socialism with the remark: "It takes courageous people to raise a standard of living, but even cowards can divide what is available."

Whitney's address was the climax of an event-packed day for Georgia Kiwanians. Earlier in the day, Brig. Gen. William E. Brougher, commanding officer of Camp Gordon at Augusta, urged a strong American defense for the maintenance of world peace. Dr. Raymond R. Paty, Chancellor of the University System of Georgia, likewise stressed the need for preparedness and declared the United States "must outthink, outwork and outwit" Russia in Europe.

In a humorous luncheon address, Charles M. Newcomb, Executive Secretary of the Industrial Association of Cleveland, told the Kiwanians "How To Be Happy Though Educated."

Panel discussions of Kiwanis Club administration, programs, attendance, committee activity and allied subjects featured afternoon sessions. The day concluded with a large and colorful ball.

The Kiwanis convention will begin at 9 a. m. today with various committee reports. Today's luncheon speaker will be Dr. D. W. Daniel, Dean Emeritus of Clemson College. ## Jailed Irish Leader On 16th Day of Fast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 6—(AP)—David Fleming, 23, one-time leader of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, was removed from his cell to the prison hospital Monday night on the sixteenth day of his third hunger strike in Belfast Prison.

His two previous fasts last year—of 77 days in the Spring and 45 days in the Fall—finally led to his release last November after he had served four years of a 12-year sentence for treasony. Banished from Northern Ireland, he went to Dublin.

Last Sept. 21, however, he returned here and was arrested at Belfast Airport and charged with illegal possession of three rounds of rifle and revolver ammunition.

Salary Hikes Voted For 1,100 in Fulton

Fulton County Commissioners agreed Monday to give 1,100 Fulton County employees a raise beginning January 1, but left the amount to be settled later after conference with County Auditor James L. Respess.

Union leaders, headed by Asa Lawrence, Bill Cetti, F. H. Ting, Cicero Kendrick and Kenneth Murrell, favored a $25-per-month raise, but Commissioner Hailey suggested $15.

This sum, said Hailey, would cost the County approximately $300,000 per year. He pointed out that the County now pays out in salaries between 65 and 70 percent of its income.

Commissioners R. L. Doyal and J. H. Aldredge favored higher increases for employees in the lower brackets, but Commissioners L. Gloer Hailey and Charlie Brown said they believed it would be better if each employee was given the same raise.

SHE'S FREE—Happiness mingled with relief brought this expression to Beulah Louise Overell's face as she and George (Bud) Gollum were acquitted of charges of murdering her parents at the end of the longest criminal trial in American court history, at Santa Ana, Cal.

Charlton Man Indicted

FOLKSTON, Oct. 6—(AP) — A Charlton County Circuit Court Grand Jury Monday returned an indictment charging Wayne F. Woodruff with first degree murder in the July 13 slaying of Myron D. Sutherland, Jacksonville sportsman.

The State of Georgia charged Woodruff shot his hunting companion in an abandoned cabin near St. George, with robbery as the motive. Woodruff has admitted the killing, but claimed the shooting was accidental.

Sutherland's body was found a week after the shooting and Woodruff was taken into custody several days later at El Paso, Texas.

Gold Fields Discovered, Burma Premier Reports

RANGOON, Burma, Oct. 6—(AP) Burmese newspapers Monday quoted Premier Thakin Nu as saying that two gold fields whose combined area is "larger than the Mysore gold fields" in India had been discovered in Northern Burma.

The reports said Thakin Nu made the announcement Sunday during a conference with Burmese editors on a three point plan for stimulating industry in Burma.

Happy Louise Bids Adieu To Santa Ana and 'Bud'

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 6—(INS)—Beulah Louise Overell bid goodbye to Santa Ana Monday to begin a new life.

Not only was she free of jail cells but she also turned her back on the lover with whom she spent 20 weeks fighting charges that they slew her wealthy parents.

Beulah Louise intends to take a trip but it won't be the honeymoon journey she once hoped to share with George "Bud" Gollum after they were acquitted of the yacht murder deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Overell.

Bud is going to take a trip, too, although he wants to marry Beulah Louise and go along with her it looks like as if he, too, will travel alone.

Beulah Louise awoke this morning after a sound sleep at the home of her attorney, Otto Jacobs, Flapping her arms, she said she felt "free as a bird and so happy I'm just in a dizzy whirl."

Although nothing was definite she said she'd like to take a long trip to wherever her fancy directed, probably with her cousin, Marjorie Junequist.

As for Bud, he said:

"I love her now more than anyone else. Everything is now up to Beulah."

But evidently the jury of six men and six women who deliberated 17 hours and 42 minutes to return an acquittal verdict Sunday broke the bonds which held the young couple together.

After the acquittal Beulah Louise would neither kiss Bud nor shake hands with him for photographers.

She did say that she is going to attend a dance next Saturday with a new heart interest although she wouldn't tell his name.

The President's Food Program

Except in actual war, never before has the average American been brought to such poignant realization of his role in international affairs as by President Truman's food conservation program which calls for meatless Tuesdays, no poultry or eggs on Thursdays and a slice of bread saved every day.

To most of us such a program will mean no considerable sacrifice beyond mild inconvenience, but it will enable our Government to send sufficient food abroad to assist Europeans to survive the coming Winter. For the facts are that of our current wheat crop only about 470,000,000 bushels can be exported if Americans indulge themselves in normal consumption. At least 100,000,000 bushels more are needed if Europe is to live. The only way to obtain that is for Americans who are accustomed to using all they want, besides wasting a great deal, to cut down ever so slightly on consumption and eliminate waste entirely.

The reason for Europe's unexpectedly severe food shortage does not lie in shiftlessness or in lack of willingness to get agricultural production started after a devastating war. Primarily, the shortage has been caused by misfortunes beyond the control of anyone. As our own Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton Anderson, put it: "Western Europe has had a combination of bad circumstances almost without parallel in farming history. Farmers have struggled against too much water in planting season and too little when the grain was coming into maturity."

These misfortunes multiplied into a major catastrophe, Mr. Anderson pointed out, when they were piled upon other disappointments such as lack of seeds, fertilizer, machinery and livestock. For it must be remembered that the "scorched earth" policy followed by the armies of World War II left much of the continent virtually desolate.

Unless Europe is fed it faces collapse—a collapse that not only would be economic but political as well, and which would open the way for domination by Soviet Russia. And now that the world is divided sharply into two camps, with Washington and Moscow as their capitals, this contingency is something no American can contemplate without dread.

President Truman's program, then, gives the individual American a definite part in his country's foreign policy. It gives him a chance to answer the threat of world-wide Communism in a voice that will be heard in the halls of the Kremlin itself.

As Sec. Marshall aptly phrased it: "The connection between the individual American and world affairs is unmistakably clear—our foreign policy has entered the American home and taken a seat at the family table."

Ecclesiastes and the GOP

We note that the Republican publicity committee hath labored and brought forth a petty, poorly conceived document in which an effort is made to prove that President Truman, after all, is just a small man.

The chief complaint seems to be that Mr. Truman beat them to the punch every time they prepared a plan by doing it himself.

About all the report seems to prove is that however small Mr. Truman may be, the gentlemen who compiled the report are much smaller indeed.

We commend to them Ecclesiastes 10:8: "He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it."

War Plants in Peacetime

Evidence of the permanent benefits which have accrued to the Southeast from wartime industrialization is contained in a comparative review of war-plant operations published by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Among the chief advantages of the wartime experience, says Economist Charles Taylor, was the demonstration to "many Southern communities that industrialization was possible."

Accompanying figures show that of the 108 war plants in the district financed with public funds, all but five are continuing operations. And though they employ 73 percent fewer workers than at the wartime peak, they employ nearly 46 percent more than prior to the war.

Mr. Taylor pointed out that employment has continued high at many small plants that expanded their facilities during the war and "at certainly no less than 10 of them postwar employment exceeds the wartime peak."

In addition to a survey of the situation, which we regard as highly satisfactory and indicative of continued industrial expansion, the report offers sage advice to communities with war plants left on their hands. The same tactics and energy are required, says Mr. Taylor, for conversion of these plants to peacetime use as are needed for establishing new plants.

Further, many small businesses have been found to "constitute a more stable economic support in some instances than a few large ones could." The report explains that division of the large specialized plants into space for a number of small businesses often is more feasible than attempting to establish a single industry.

And even though the war brought huge expenditures in plant facilities to the Southeast, Mr. Taylor concludes that the intangible benefits may prove to be far greater. For "the ability of Southerners to produce the goods" during the war not only has led to utilization of war-built plants, but has influenced even greater expansion in industries not connected with the war effort.

No Seat No Fare?

Editor Constitution: Once upon a time in the far distant past, to be more definite, just prior to World War I, a street car company in one of the South's larger cities made application for a raise in streetcar rates as all were then charging five cents per trip within the city together with transfer privileges.

Just about that time two cities, one in the United States, Toledo by name, and one in Ireland, Dublin, were experimenting with streetcar fare of one cent per ride and in both instances they made money.

But during the war (and on account of the war) these Dixie companies were permitted to increase their fares, but after the war was over nothing was ever said about cutting down the car fare.

Now that our company here, which is enjoying the most business they have ever had, proof of which is the packed cars each day, they are asking for further increases. Since there is nobody to argue for the people, they will probably get all for which they ask.

But if I am correctly informed, and I believe that I am, the people can remember a streetcar company cannot collect fare unless they furnish you a seat, hence it might thus be possible to induce the company to wish they had continued on the easy money they are now making at 7½ cents if they continue to sell tokens and 10 cents for a single fare without a token.

Their stock does not indicate that they are in bad financial condition. I think they can pull through if they are not granted a raise in car fare.

Fine Coverage

Editor Constitution: I can't let this day pass into history without dropping you a line complimenting you and your paper on the very fine coverage of the taxicab driver slaying.

While pats on the back are being passed out, I want to strongly recommend a salary raise for the reporter who wrote the lead story and for Miss Sibley, who turned in such a well-done feature on the youthful killer's family. Both of these stories were complete and each was a fine example of excellent journalism, despite the fact I hate that word "journalism."

Adequate story handling such as these help maintain the Constitution's claim of being the best in the South.

Editor Constitution: When I look at the wonderful new home of my favorite newspaper my mind lingers on the finest news writer I ever read after. And when I look at that top story I cannot but pray it will be occupied by Ralph McGill, for there looking out into the heavens of this dear old world he can reach out and touch God's hand and see greater visions to tell us about. For in quietness and secret we get closer to God and see greater visions. God bless you, Mr. McGill, and keep up the good work you are doing.

Like a Mad Dog

Editor Constitution: I have just listened to one of the ablest of our radio commentators in a fervant and extremely well-presented appeal for sane and humanitarian reasoning by all people, those of Russia included, in the attempt to resolve U. S.-Russian differences.

During recent days I have heard and read many other such appeals, despite which we seem to be drifting progressively faster and closer to the shoals of disaster.

No pity or compassion is wasted on a rabid dog. The disease responsible for his cruel and vicious acts is recognized as incurable—the only cure is eradication of the animal.

Compared with the beliefs of all free and freedom loving Christian people, the beliefs of the Russian Politbureau, and their methods of contaminating the world with their poisonous anti-social and athiestic doctrines, are as dangerous to the world community as the acts of a mad dog. Gifts of money and materials, overtures of genuine friendship, appeals to reason and abject appeasement all have failed utterly in the accomplishment of any good.

Why waste any further time and effort in any attempt to reason with the Mad Red Dog? Humanitarian considerations? Bosh and poppycock! The population of Russia has long since been contaminated with the virus of the Dog—and if they have passively and wilfully permitted such a contamination then they, too, deserve the same strict measure of control.

If the Russian Politbureau, after a final warning, refuses to play ball according to the rules of the free people of the world, then let's get a distasteful job behind us.

Hugh Casey's 'Blood Starter'

The very next time I am in New York I am going over to Brooklyn and drop in at Hugh Casey's saloon for at least a talk.

The boy from the Buckhead section of Atlanta has come to be something of a legend in baseball, and his work as fireman in the recent World Series will do that legend no harm but, on the contrary, expand it even as Casey himself has expanded.

I recall when they pulled him in from the sandlots to the Atlanta Crackers in the days when the late Wilbert (Uncle Robbie) Robinson, one of the last of the old Orioles, was manager and President of the Crackers.

Uncle Robbie always said he could tell more about a pitcher's probabilities by looking at his legs than by watching a young pitcher's curve ball. It was Uncle Robbie who laid down the dictum that a man is no older than his legs.

"All that talk about a man being no older than his arteries is the bunk," said Uncle Robbie. "It's his legs that count."

Legs Once, when Uncle Robbie was managing Brooklyn and when they were called, in his honor, "The Robins," they played a trick on him. After a dozen or so rounds of beer Uncle Robbie claimed that he could tell whether a pitcher was any good or not by simply looking at his legs. Some bets were made.

The conspirators got a screen which showed only a man's legs. They brought in a man whose legs, at least, were in baseball stockings.

Uncle Robbie took a look and said the man was a good pitcher. They took away the screen and revealed that the man was armless, having lost his arms in a railway wreck.

Uncle Robbie was undaunted. He said the man would have been a good pitcher if he had not lost his arms. So they had some more beers and Uncle Robbie held the stein for the armless man. He scored a triumph when the man said he had been a good sandlot pitcher before the accident.

Casey Uncle Robbie took to Hugh Casey, the rookie, because he said Hugh Casey had fine pitching legs.

He liked him for other reasons, too.

Hugh Casey was a fine bird shot. When a quail got up anywhere in the vicinity of Hugh Casey, that quail was as good as dead.

Hugh Casey could even hit snipe and that was very difficult indeed, as everyone knows. Because, of course, the snipe can see the shot and dodge them.

This was in the days when Dover Hall was heaven on earth. It was out in the piney woods from Brunswick. An artesian well splashed before the main lodge. There were deer in its pines and quail in its clearings. The buildings, left from an old English plantation of the sea island days, were hard by the marshes and it was nothing to have Uncle Robbie come bellowing in at 4 o'clock in the morning, awakening his guests, who were like as not to have throbbing skulls, with the announcement that a fine marsh-hen tide was running for all hands to get up and out after them. For the sake of older guests who might need it, he always have a Negro attendant along with a bottle of "blood starter."

Ancients It was another of Uncle Robbie's medical dictums that when a fellow got to be around 55 and 60 years of age he needed to have his blood started every morning with a small snifter of stimulants. Some times it was surprising, down at Dover Hall, how young some of the guests seemed to be. They would be starting their blood before going out on a marsh-hen hunt and sometimes you would swear they couldn't be more than 30 or so years of age. But then, they must have been older because Uncle Robbie's rules were strict. He would not give a potion of blood starter to any person who was under 55 years of age, but he also had a rule which was never to question a gentleman's word. A man could state his age and not be questioned.

Anyhow, he kept the rookie Hugh Casey down there at Dover Hall one Winter as his "meat hunter."

Whenever the quail larder was running low or the deer meat was running out, he would bellow for Hugh Casey and Hugh would take his gun and wander off in the woods, with a dog or so along.

By nightfall there would be fresh deer liver and steaks and for breakfast there would be quail.

They were wonderful days, and I know that sometimes Hugh Casey must think of them, now that he has become a Brooklyn hero and has opened him a place where a man can go in and start his blood at any hour of the day, without benefit of a marsh-hen tide.

Boston Book Censor Imperils Unique Role

This fellow came into the office and said he wanted to register a complaint. He was a studious appearing chap, but there was a glint in his eye which hinted at a sense of humor.

"I am a reader of books," he began. "An omnivorous devourer of novels, chiefly. I read all sorts. Historical romances. Psychological themes. Problem stories. Whodunits. 'Most anything, in fact.

"I have a taste in fiction which, while wide, enjoys an occasional fillip from the more daring types of fiction. I like an occasional dash of pepper in my literary diet. In other words, I delight, now and then, in reading a book which can be described, in a word, as 'naughty.' Sexy. The kind of thing you wouldn't give your saintly Aunt Martha as a going-away gift. Unless she was going away for good.

"I have, along with hundreds of thousands of readers all over this broad land of ours, appreciated for years the role in the book world that has been assumed by the public censor in Boston. For some reason I have never been able to fathom, the Boston nerve of moral values has seemed to be more sensitive than any other. Book after book has been banned from sale in Boston on the ground it is morally unfit.

"This, obviously, has been very useful to readers elsewhere. It has served as a guide to the salacious in literature. We have noted that such-and-such a book has been banned in Boston and we have promptly placed an order for it with our local bookseller. Not, mind you, that most of these Boston-banned books have been really bad. They have been accepted without objection practically everywhere else. But the Boston censor has served a purpose in guiding us to the tangier dishes for our literary diet. We have all appreciated that service."

Commercial Value I murmured a qualified agreement.

"I understand what you mean," said I. "I remember, for instance, myself reading a not very well written book called 'Forever Amber' after I had noticed a news item saying its sale was forbidden in Boston. Frankly, I found that book rather disappointing, even from the paprika angle. It's 'hot stuff,' if I may so designate it, was rather on the crude side, I thought."

"Exactly," he responded. "But that same book sold I don't know how many hundreds of thousands of copies. At one time, everyone was reading it. And I am quite sure a good proportion of the buyers of that work were induced to put out the three bucks or so that it cost, because of the clue to its contents provided by the Boston frown.

"But I'm worried, now. I'm afraid Boston is going to lose its importance in the book world. The censor is overdoing things. First thing you know a Boston ban won't be worth more than a scant thousand sales or so to any publisher."

Irrational "I've just finished reading a book," he went on, "that was recommended to me because it had been banned in Boston. Naturally I expected something with snap. Something to talk about, to recommend to my friends with like taste to my own.

"And I found a bookful of good reading, I'll admit. But I couldn't, for the life of me, see any good reason for the Boston censor's thumbs down. Or, sure, she spends a week with the guy without benefit of clergy. The author obviously is familiar with the facts of life.

"But really it is a highly moral book. It teaches a moral lesson fit for any sermon. The gal commits suicide, because she has never acquired a decent personal scale of values. What higher moral could an author point?"

"Do you think—" I began, when he interrupted.

"I know what you are going to ask. And my answer is 'no.' I don't believe it cost the publishers anything to secure a Boston ban on a book. I have too much faith in the integrity of all concerned. Of course, such a ban has been of tremendously high value in boosting sales. Obviously, the publisher whose book is banned in Boston is regarded as a very lucky guy. For that assures him tremendous sales everywhere else. I mean, it has assured such sales in the past. If the Boston censor, however, is going to start putting his outlaw brand on such books as 'Spring on 52nd Street' he's going to ruin his value as literary guidepost to the hotter reading.

"It's a shame."

Dousing The Torch

Ernest Warren was obviously drunk. Very drunk. As the actor zigzagged along Broadway, passersby detoured around him. Some of them recognized the little man and chuckled at his rubber-legged walk.

"That's Ernie Warren," said a booking agent to a girl. "Trying to put out that torch with alcohol, I guess.'

The agent walked over to the actor. "Why don't you take a taxi home, Ernie?" he said.

"Can't," said the little man. "No room for it in my apartment.

On Fifty-second Street the actor turned east and, with the tentative steps of a man walking on thin ice, made his way to "21." For a moment the man at the door considered turning him away. But Ernie was an old customer and a "name."

"Can I help you, Mr. Warren?" asked the doorman.

"Just hold the building still," said the little man. "I'll manage."

The headwaiter seated the actor at a table near the entrance. "A double Scotch," Warren told the waiter.

OVER AT the bar a photographer's model nudged her college boy escort. "That's Ernie Warren," she whispered. "He's married to Sylvia Howard—you know, the woman who writes those syndicated political pieces. They separated about six months ago. The old triangle—girl, boy, booze."

At the table, the actor was going through the elaborate business of getting the drink to his lips. He very nearly made it. Less than half of it ended up on his vest.

A few minutes later a woman wearing a lot of hat walked into the room. It was a purple hat, and it had a feather in it.

The little man spotted the hat and decided he was a duck hunter. Leveling an imaginary shotgun, he tracked the hat across the room, and went, "Bang! Bang! Bang!"

The bar flies tittered. The woman in the purple hat was furious.

"You see," said the little man. "Thass what you get for not flyin' South with the rest of the birdies."

The woman turned and walked out. The little man loped after her. The inside doorman stopped him. "I'm sorry, Mr. Warren," he said, "but I'll have to ask you not to come here again."

THE DOORMAN led him to a taxi and gave the driver the little man's address. As the cab started up, the actor leaned back in his seat and began to laugh. He straightened his tie, smoothed his hair, and dabbed his vest with a handkerchief. When the cab let him out in front of his Sixty-fifth Street apartment, he was humming Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

"No calls tonight," he told the switchboard operator on his way to the elevator.

In his apartment, Ernie Warren kicked off his shoes and put on a robe. Then he went to the kitchenette, poured himself a glass of milk and rooted a box of ginger snaps out of the pantry. He mashed half the ginger snaps into the milk, and ate the delicacy slowly with a spoon.

After rinsing out the glass he put on his pajamas and got into bed. He picked up a newspaper and turned to the drama page. "Too bad the critics didn't catch me tonight," he mused.

Just before he snapped out the bed lamp, the actor reached into the drawer of the night table and took out a piece of note paper. There was some writing on it in a firm feminine hand. He read it slowly in the manner of a man who knows something by heart.

"Dear Ernie," it began. "Friends tell me you haven't had a drink since we broke up six months ago. In view of this, I am prepared to consider resuming our marital relationship. I wish to talk to you about this, and suggest you meet me Tuesday night at 8:30 at '21'

"SYLVIA."

The actor turned off the light, smiled peacefully, and went to sleep.

Don't Take It Too Seriously

Washington—There is no occasion to take any too seriously the furor which some members of the Senate Appropriations Committee are trying to raise over the refusal of the Russian Government to permit them to go to Moscow.

The Committee, headed by Sen. Styles Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire, is scheduled to leave this week for Europe on a general investigation relating to outlays of American dollars.

Mostly its inquiry will be concerned with the cost of maintaining American occupation forces, all moneys for which have to be appropriated by Congress. At best, however, there is a strong suspicion of the whole business being merely another junket.

Excuse Russia had been included on the itinerary, although we have no occupation forces there as yet and our outlays in the USSR are being held to a minimum. The pretext given for the Moscow visit was to inspect the operations of the American Embassy there—a very flimsy excuse.

Now the Russians are not so dumb as to be able to see through that. Nor were they deceived by the fact that the Committee sought to give color to its pretense by taking along with it Asst. Secretary of State John E. Peurifoy, who directs the operations of United States Embassies throughout the world.

It is all but an unprecedented thing for a congressional committee to go to the scene for an investigation of some American embassy. The Russians know that. Ordinarily any inquiries of the kind are made by regular State Department inspectors, a staff of which is maintained for that purpose.

Obviously the Senate Appropriations Committee was trying to sneak into Russia for a different purpose. The Russians, a suspicious people anyway, are not over-fond of being sneaked on.

And so visas to permit members of the Committee to enter Russia for the mission named were denied by the Foreign Ministry of the Soviet Union. Our Ambassador in Moscow, Gen. Bedell Smith, made an effort to have Soviet authorities reconsider. This only brought a second rejection, which shows the Russian were a bit determined about the matter.

Reaction Since then Sen. Bridges and other members of his group have been delivering vociferous protests. They are demanding that we ban Russians from coming to this country as an act of retaliation.

Perhaps if Sen. Bridges and his associates had approached the matter a bit differently they might have succeeded where they failed. If they had been more frank about the purpose of the Moscow visit, for example. If they had told the Russians they merely wanted to look around to see how they were doing, that would have appealed to them more than trying to conceal their purpose behind a phony mission.

Other congressional committees have gotten into Russia that way — simply by being honest. Some of our junketeering Congressmen have been in Moscow already this past Summer. Some others have also been turned down.

'Red Baiters' But then there is no positive assurance that the Senate Appropriations group would have been allowed entry under any circumstances. The reason is that it so happens the Committee includes in its membership some of the worst Red baiters in the country. Sen. Bridges himself is not beyond reproach in this respect. Others are Sen. Brooks, of Illinois, and Sen. Wherry, of Nebraska, both conspicuous Red shouters.

The Russians knew all of this, of course. And when they looked over the list they were able to see that all those who wanted to come to Moscow with the Committee were not on a benevolent mission. They have let a lot of other people in during recent years, only to see them return to the United States and put out bitter tirades against them.

Naturally they are suspicious of people who have been shouting against them even before going.

Our Policy None of this is to defend the Russians for their peculiarities in not letting anyone come into the country who is on a legitimate mission. Here we grant visas to visiting foreign officials without asking any questions as to their purpose in coming. Most other countries extend similar courtesies.

But it is difficult to escape the feeling that the laugh in this case is on Sen. Bridges for his naive way of handling the matter. Anticipating that he was handicapped by some of the company he kept and might be turned down, he sought to outsmart the Russians by putting his visit on the basis of an American embassy investigation.

It was easy for the Russians to see through this. Hence most of the squawks that are coming up have a hollow ring.

Voices for World Government

WASHINGTON—It's almost like yelling into a hurricane to make a sensible suggestion, such as transforming the United Nations into a real federalized world government, to the UN Assembly in its present bedlam of confusion and bitterness. It may be naive and rash, too. Even so, millions of people in this country are in deadly earnest about creating a real world government, with a body of law and means to enforce it. They are the still small voice in the midst of the whirlwind.

This still small voice is represented in a plea presented to every delegate at the UN Assembly to do something at this session, if no more than appointing a special commission to review the whole subject of UN reform. It comes in a memorandum prepared by United World Federalists, Inc., one of the organizations of citizens working for an effective world federation.

BECAUSE the present spectacle at New York proves so cleverly the need for something better and stronger, and because the diplomats and politicians continue their adroit deafness, it is timely to point out once again the growing demand from our people that our country, which took the lead in establishing UN, now take the initiative to make it into something that will represent the people of the world and their aspirations for peace. Instead, as now, of being merely a debating society for windy and captious diplomats who plainly are not representing the people.

It is timely to recall and recapitulate a few incidents, as does the United World Federalists, Inc., such as the referendum at last November's election among the people of Massachusetts, adopted nine to one, that urged their State Senators to pass a resolution asking the President and Congress to direct our UN delegates to propose or support amendments that will make UN a "world federal government able to prevent war."

Such a resolution was duly passed unanimously. For another, 15 other State legislatures have adopted similar resolutions. Further, two resolutions for UN reform have been introduced in our Congress by representative groups, embracing both parties, in House and Senate. Again, many petitions from cities and towns have poured into the White House. Finally, on the world scene, 300 delegates from 21 nations, including ours, adopted a resolution at Montreux, Switzerland, in August, calling for establishment of a world government, either through strengthening UN or by a world assembly called by the people, themselves.

THE VOICES are raised all over the world.

And now a few very sound remarks from a businessman, W. T. Holliday, of Cleveland, President, Standard Oil Company, of Ohio, in the current issue of "Freedom and Union":

"The opponents of the effort to establish world law are simply apostles of futility. In effect, they say that war is inevitable, and there is no use trying to do anything about it. That is the attitude of our political leaders, and, I am afraid, it is the general attitude of our business leaders.

"But war has become too terrible to permit such a philosophy of despair. The people of this country do not have such a futile acceptance of world destruction. Opinion polls indicate that, in spite of practically no popular educational effort, two-thirds of our people want world government even at the cost of giving up a little bit of that non-existent thing, external sovereignty.

"WHAT WE NEED in this country is continued public and private discussion of this subject until political leaders are forced to change their attitude. Right now we have too much of the governmental attitude that 'papa knows best.' Our diplomats and statesmen do not know best. They are enchained in the diplomatic habits of thought of a two-dimensional world. They will never escape that enslavement until they are blasted out by the force of public opinion. . . .

"But what about Russia? That is the question always to be expected. But the first question to be answered is: What about the people of the United States? You will never know what is the attitude of Russia until the people of the U. S. make up their mind and force their will to be reflected in the policy of the Government of the U. S. There will never be any chance of abiding peace until public opinion in this country forces our Government to make it clear to the world that we are willing to take the lead in establishing world law and order."

Evading The Law

Atty. Gen. Clark and Secretary of the Interior Krug are proposing to give away, without compensation, property that belongs to the people of the United States. Santa Claus has never been so generous.

What these two high officials want to do, with the gracious concurrence of Fred N. Howser, Attorney General of California, is to overrule a decision that the Supreme Court handed down last June holding that the United States has exclusive control of the tidelands, which, in California, are rich in oil. The three men in question have filed stipulations in the Supreme Court which, in effect, apologize for the effrontery of the Government in claiming title to these lands.

PROPOSING to deprive the people of the United States of any present, or even prospective, benefit from this oil, Messrs. Clark and Krug overlooked the fact that no executive officer, but only the Congress, may alienate property of the United States. These stipulations not only would have the effect of taking money out of the United States Treasury for the benefit of California, the purpose plainly is to whittle down the property that belongs to the United States.

These supposed servants of the people have decided that the artificial harbor at Long Beach, which is rich with oil, is not a part of the ocean at all, but is an "inland waterway." Under this doctrine, any State abutting on the ocean, or any city located on the shore line, could create an "inland waterway" by building piers, which would take title out of the United States, even although it would not take salt out of the water.

Another effect of these stipulations is to put the Supreme Court strictly in its place. The Court has decided that these tidelands belong to the United States. Apparently, this was not pleasing to the Attorney General.

HE WENT to great lengths, while the case was pending, to protect his own State of Texas against the possibility of a decision in favor of the Government. After all, Mr. Clark is a Texas politician and an assiduous one at that. It is a coincidence that Mastin G. White, who approved the stipulations, if he did not draft them, is also from Texas. It is understandable that these two would not do anything, if they could help it, that might adversely affect the oil interests, particularly those of their own State.

But why Mr. J. A. Krug, of the State of Wisconsin, where there is no oil, should join in an attempt to give away valuable oil rights that belong to the United States, it is difficult to understand. President Truman's attitude in this whole affair is hardly a matter of conjecture, since two members of his Cabinet have undertaken to alienate rich Government oil properties. Moreover, the stipulations went pretty far to commit President Truman to the proposition that he too proposed to do whatever he could to nullify the decision of the Supreme Court.

Since these stipulations, in effect, would overrule a solemn decision of the Supreme Court, it would seem to me that their authors are in contempt of the Superme Court. Not only is it the purpose to whittle down the area covered by the decision, under a bizarre theory of what really constitues an "inland waterway," it is proposed that everything shall remain in status quo until legislation shall be passed by Congress. Naturally, if Congress should never pass any legislation, which might be the easy way out, especially in a campaign year, then the United States might theoretically own valuable property, from which, in the view of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior, favorite individuals would be reaping the profits.

IT EVEN seems to be the intention not to ask for an acounting of the royalties that have been collected by California, and by certain political subdivisions of that State.

This oil-rich property belongs to the United States. The Supreme Court has said so. Officers of the United States who, in a weak moment, seek to set aside such an important finding of that high tribunal, are more than contemptuous of the Supreme Court. They thumb their noses at the people, whose servants they profess to be. They conspire against the public interest.

If these oil lands belong to the people, as the Supreme Court says that they do, then the profits belong to the people. Californians are entitled to their share, but no more.

'More Pants In the Garden'

Well, we had lots of fun meeting with the Men's Garden Club of Atlanta last Wednesday and in talking with the members about easy farming. The Club consists of men from all walks of life and who are drawn together by reason of their mutual interest in gardening.

From the announcements made and from the run of conversation among the members, their interests seem to be chiefly in flowers and fruits and shrubs, though their motto would indicate that they are vegetable gardeners. "More Pants in the Garden" is one of the finest slogans we have ever heard.

WHAT THIS fine organization could do to the basic farming situation in Georgia if it were possible to turn them loose upon it, no one can say. Every member has the right attitude toward the land and is something of a specialist in the growing of some difficult plant. If 10 percent of the time and thought and effort were put into the production and care of a crop as these men put into the production of a dahlia or a rose, the farms of Georgia would take on a charm and a bloom that would astound us.

There ought to be some way to unite the garden clubs, (men and women), the forestry groups, the Friends of the Land, the Kudzu Club, the City Slickers, the bird clubs, the City Slickers, Martin and Blue Bird Club of Connie Watts, the Gourd Societies, and all kindred spirits who love the land and work with it in a spirit of wonder and appreciation, into a central body where their influence and fine feeling and tremendous enthusiam could be put to work on the greater problem. For these folks study their work, use the right tools and materials and strive endlessly to produce a better product. Collectively they would make a force that would amaze everyone.

BUT THIS IS NOT to say that many farmers do not approach their work in the same spirit but these same farmers would be the first to welcome the co-operation of men and women who are specialists in the growing of rare and super plants and flowers and shrubs and trees and berries and the rest.

Those who can should unite with the Garden Club, for their good cheer and their spirit of intelligent effort is cantagious. And we need these so very much, in connection with our work with the land.

Sores Fester With Years

Stinker tore a sheet of paper into very small sections and tossed them up the aisles so they would fall beside little Willie's desk.

"Willie," said the teacher, "pick up those scraps of paper."

"I didn't throw 'em there," said Willie.

The teacher's eyes snapped.

"I didn't ask who threw them there," she said. "I told you to pick them up."

Willie had learned obedience at home. He picked up the soraps, but his heart was hot with resentment and rebellion. Stinker had played a trick on him and the teacher had done her part to make it work. The titters of the other kids didn't mend matters.

A NORMAL boy is born with a sense of justice. It is a keen, instinctive, logical sense of fairness, which in childhood is not yet dulled or warped by group prejudice, community opinion or the need of getting ahead.

The young teacher was incapable of realizing it, but she had made a sore that would rankle for years; affect Willie's attitude toward authority all his days and affect his whole life.

In another place lived a poor country boy named Jonathan, who walked four miles to attend school in town after completing eight grades at a rural school.

His first day at the town school was one never to be forgotten.

HE HAD far outgrown the only suit he had. The trousers failed by six inches to reach his shoetops; the coat sleeves ended six inches above his wrists. His father couldn't or wouldn't buy him a new suit. He knew how he looked and felt cruelly embarrassed.

He was a few minutes late at school and everybody looked up as he entered the room. There was a moment of silence, and then a spontaneous outburst of screaming, roaring laughter. It was contagious. The teacher looked and laughed until she was limp.

Jonathan never got over it. He always felt self-conscious and inferior in the presence of a group, and never was able to face a crowd and speak.

These things happened years ago. Willie is now a famous psychologist. He says male and female minds differ as their bodies do, and no boy can develop in a normal, masculine way if he is dominated by female teachers.

Jonathan is successful, but might have been more so except for his fear of audiences.

The moral, I suppose, is that a kid's future is shaped by acts and by what is done to him, rather than by precepts and preachments, or even example.

OLLIE REEVES

Just a Rhyme a Day

"This book, so helpful in its suggestions for successful living, so great an aid in making important decisions of a business and social nature, will be sent on 10 days' free trial."—Advertisement.

We lose a lot of precious time, we waste the golden hours,
Exhaust our patience and our friends, as well as mental powers,
In making up our minds to do the things that lie in waiting
Which we must ultimately face, despite our vacillating.

Thus any book which promises to give this fault correction
Is one we feel should have a place amidst our small collection—
To tell us what we should decide when mama asks for money,
To brush it off with serious talk or tell a joke that's funny.

Our indecisions are among the major human curses,
They follow us and hold us back, from cradles to the hearses,
And if we try to plan a life or plot the way to run it,
The chances are, on looking back, we wish we hadn't done it.

And here we are again faced with the matter of deciding
If we shall send and get the book from people so confiding—
Suppose they send it on to us, with 10 free days to try it
And after we had read it we decide we wouldn't buy it!

GALLUP POLL

Future Dim for War-Torn Nations

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J.—The average American takes a dim view of the future of many of the major countries involved in the war. Coast-to-coast questioning by the Institute shows that fewer than one-third of the nation's voters think conditions will be any better during the next year in England, France, Italy, Germany or China than they have been during the past year.

The survey questioned voters as follows:

"Do you think conditions in general will be better or worse in the coming year than they have been during the last year in the following countries?"

| | Better | Worse | Same | No. Opin. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| China | 20% | 30% | 17% | 33% |
| Italy | 25 | 25 | 14 | 36 |
| England | 29 | 33 | 13 | 25 |
| France | 31 | 20 | 16 | 33 |
| Germ'y | 37 | 22 | 17 | 24 |
| Japan | 51 | 9 | 12 | 28 |

It is interesting to note that more people think the status of two countries—England and China—would be worse than better. In the case of Italy, where American observers are reporting a desperate need for aid, sentiment is about evenly divided over whether the future will be worse or better.

THE THREE countries where better conditions are expected to the greatest extent are France, Germany and Japan. Optimism about Japan undoubtedly stems from the fact that there has been relatively little publicity given to hardship and difficulties there, as compared to the flood of reports from Europe.

The public's apparent satisfaction with the job which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been doing in Japan may find reflection in next year's pre-convention presidential campaign. Gen. MacArthur has been talked about as a possible Republican candidate and a substantial MacArthur boom would likely develop if the General gave a nod of approval.

MARKET NEWS

Selected Stocks Up as Cashing-In Hits Few Leaders

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—Selected stocks continued the advancing shift in today's market while many leaders were more or less depressed by profit cashing on the lengthy rise.

Operations still were mostly in the hands of professionals who covered short commitments here and there and bid for favorites on the idea that the Fall rally was far from concluded. Grain futures stumbled on the move for boosted margins and the Administration's "eat less" campaign. Share accounts were trimmed by customers' bearish over foreign complications, particularly formation of the new Communist International, and the outlook for domestic economy in the light of restrictive living costs.

Dealings slowed after a fairly active start. The ticker tape virtually halted as the deciding game of the World Series got under way. The pace again quickened in the final hour when prices stiffened in various departments. The close was notably irregular. Transfers of 930,000 shares compared with 1,270,000 last Friday.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was unchanged at 65.4 after six consecutive daily gains. Of 952 issues registering, 388 rose and 334 fell.

Selective demand lifted rail favorites in the bond market today while irregular and narrow price changes ruled the list as a whole. Activity was light as investors showed a disinclination to make many market commitments.

In the curb forward inclinations were displayed by Apex Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Babcock & Wilcox, Glen Alden Coal, Humble Oil and Niles-Bement-Pond.

CIO Officers Complain of Police Acts

CIO officials Monday night called on Federal authorities to stop Buena Vista police from allegedly using what the labor leaders called "unfair tactics" to break a strike at the Bergen Manufacturing Company.

Police, however, denied that any unfair tactics were practiced.

The strike began at the planing mill and box manufacturing company Tuesday when about 100 employees left their jobs in an effort to gain recognition from the Company for the United Woodworkers of America-CIO.

Georgia CIO Director Charles H. Gillman wired U. S. District Attorney John Cowart asking that Buena Vista police authorities be stopped from interfering with "peaceful people."

In Atlanta, Lorne Nelles, assistant to Van A. Bittner, head of the Southern Organizing Committee, declared that police were arresting strikers, then releasing them on condition that they return to work.

In a telephone conversation with The Constitution, Buena Vista Night Police Chief Otis Ammons denied any unfair practice. He said several strikers had been arrested during the day and that two were being held Monday night. He said the two were charged with "threat." Both had threatened workers who reported to their jobs at the mill this morning, he asserted.

Those arrested during the day were picked up as they stood on street corners, Ammons said, and booked under the City's anti-loitering ordinance. He said they were released when a farmer appeared at the jail and offered them a job picking corn, which was accepted.

In Atlanta Nelles also said that Emil Luter, a representative of Bittner's office in Atlanta and Area Representative for the Union, had been followed by about 15 or 16 policemen who threatened to use firearms to bring the strike to an end.

According to Nelles, there was no picket line around the Bergen plant. The strike was called, he said, in an effort to gain recognition for the Union.

The CIO's various International Unions presently are not eligible to participate in a National Labor Relations Board representation election since the Union has not complied with all requirements of the Taft-Hartley Law.

The Atlanta Civil Liberties Committee, a chapter of the American Civil Liberties League, also indicated it would take action to see if the personal rights of strikers had been violated.

William V. George, President of the League, said in Atlanta:

"We deplore this apparent abuse of the civil liberties of these people which seems to be tinged with suspicion of peonage."

George said he would intercede with the U. S. District Attorney in the case.

Judge Almand fixed the conditions as those under which he was willing to dissolve the Winecoff receivership as it affects the Arlington Corporation and Mrs. Annie Lee Irwin, former owner of the hotel property.

Ailing Sisters Face Trial on Drug Count

AUGUSTA, Oct. 6—(AP)—Two Augusta sisters, one of whom is suffering from blood poisoning and the other from a disease she knows will be fatal, are scheduled to face a Richmond County grand jury Tuesday on 19 charges of having forged prescriptions for sleeping drugs, Sol. George Hains said Monday.

The two are listed on warrants sworn against them by an Augusta druggist as Mrs. Evelyn Brown and Mrs. Lucille Herring. Because of the nature of their illnesses, Sol. Hains said, they are not expected to appear personally at the hearing.

Though both of them denied knowledge of the charges against them, Hains said, the sisters are accused of forging the name of a physician to prescriptions for a drug which is said to produce sleep.

RETONGA A BLESSING IN HIS CASE, DECLARES WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT

Can Eat Anything He Wants Now And Has Regained 16 Lbs. of Needed Weight. Is Always Telling Somebody About Retonga.

"Retonga is the best medicine I ever used in my life and I am always telling somebody about it," declares Mr. Marvin Cavines, well-known homeowner of 39 Waleska St., Canton, Ga., in discussing his happy experience with this famous herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine.

"About three years ago," continued Mr. Cavines, "I began to be distressed with sour stomach and gas pains. I tried old home remedies but continued to grow gradually worse. About a year ago I began to lose weight, and my appetite got so poor I had to force myself to eat enough to keep up and going. I felt so restless and uncomfortable from gas in my stomach that I rarely ever got a good night's rest and mornings I felt so bad I had to drive myself out of bed. Constipation forced me to use harsh laxatives continually. I felt so weakened and worn out that every day just seemed like a drag.

"Retonga was a blessing to me. It promptly relieved all this distress, I enjoy my meals, sleep soundly, and have regained sixteen pounds. Even that stubborn constipation is relieved. I feel better than in four years. It would be hard for me to praise Retonga enough."

Retonga is a purely herbal stomachic medicine combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. It's what's in the bottle that counts. Retonga may be obtained at May's Cut-Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St.—(adv.)

IDEOLOGICAL BATTLEFIELD

Soviets 'Draw Line' With New Comintern

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Communist announcement of what amounts to a new Comintern, dedicated to the erasure of Western Democracy, serves merely to formalize the establishment of the New Axis which the Russians have been forging for a long time.

Although the Communists present the organization as defensive, it is directly tied to the Politburo, and as such becomes a weapon both of Russian expansionism and Communist revolution.

It is difficult to tell whether the announcement is a part of the war of nerves which has been going on for some time, or whether the recent intensification of Russian propaganda attacks on the United States was a part of the background for the reorganization of the Comintern.

In some European quarters the action was taken as a Russian attempt to camouflage her control over the area by appearing to centralize the Communization of Middle Europe in Belgrade. It could just as well, however, be an indication that Russia feels sufficiently strong to ignore the remaining independence movements and take over openly the various Communist parties which have clung to some pretense of being indigenous.

The announced objectives are no different from those Russia has pursued ever since the war. She wants to defeat the Marshall Plan for Western Europe because its failure would increase the chaos in which revolutionaries can do their best work. She believes such failure would definitely contribute to that collapse of capitalism which she hopes will create a world-wide vacuum into which she can step. She wants to convince as many countries as possible, and especially those she has captured, that she is saving them from a fate worse than death in the embrace of money-mad American monopolists.

Above everything, she wants to be strong and to completely integrate the economies of the captive countries into her own. To do so she has to create a smoke screen which will blind them to their natural economic affiliations with the West. At the same time she must tighten the bonds between Communist and other European Leftist parties to insure sufficient strength to carry out the program whether persuasion works or not.

In the light of Stalin's statement four years ago that dissolution of the old Comintern would clear the way for "future organization of a companionship of nations," its re-establishment leads to natural fears for the United Nations. By this further step to formalize the breach between East and West, this declaration of ideological war, Russia further dims UN hopes. But for the time being the organization seems to be as valuable—perhaps more so—to Russia as to anyone else. It is a wonderful propaganda forum and an ideal place to obstruct the efforts of the other nations to substitute co-operation for chaos.

On this point, then, the formation of the New Axis seems to be more of an intensification of firmly fixed policy than a truly new offensive. Each side has now served notice on the other:

"Not one more inch!"

Four Gunmen Grab $7,700 In Club Raid

AMBLER, Pa., Oct. 6—(AP)—Four masked gunmen terrorized and robbed 10 persons Monday in a daring predawn raid of the Oak Terrace Country Club. Their loot was estimated at $7,700.

The robbers used telephone wires, neckties and bathrobe cords to truss up seven men and three women following a roundup in a room-to-room tour of the old-style mansion clubhouse.

Clarence Grieb, 50-year-old manager of the Country Club, said he was forced from his bed by the intruders and at gunpoint opened the safe which contained $7,000 in weekend receipts. An additional $700 was taken from pockets of the victims.

He said a thin-faced man, leader of the gang, routed him from bed and then noticed a vial of medicinal tablets near by.

"What, are you sick?" the robber asked.

"Yes, I've got a very bad heart," Grieb replied.

"Well, then you better take your pills now," the robber told him.

Grieb told police the Club's front door was never locked as a convenience to members who live there.

Parading through the hallways, the men awakened eight other persons and herded them into the clubroom where the safe was located.

lacks the power to order higher margins, sent telegrams to boards of directors of 10 exchanges declaring:

"By direction of the President, we request that the Government Board of your exchange increase minimum initial margin requirements on all transactions in grain futures to not less than 33 1-3 percent of the market price."

Meantime, the Food Committee modified its call for eggless and poultryless Thursdays to except Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, which all fall on Thursday this year. It asked, however, that on the Mondays before the holidays the nation forego these foods.

Mr. Truman also asked the nation to deny itself meat on Tuesdays, and called on each individual to save a slice of bread a day. His appeal drew swift reaction:

Restaurant owners gave assurance that they were cutting waste and would featured well-prepared but, less costly foods. Distillers, brewers and meat producers began working out the details toward a goal of using less grain for alcoholic beverages and for fattening cattle. Poultry and egg dealers pledged co-operation "to the fullest extent."

Sen. Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said at his home in Concord, N. H., he expected President Truman to summon Congress back into special session for Dec. 1 to take emergency action on Europe's food problems. And CIO President Philip Murray, a member of the President's Food Committee, echoed the call for a special session along with an appeal for Congress to re-enact price controls because, he said, "profiteering is the greatest source of food waste."

Other suggestions for curbing waste and saving more food to send to hungry Europe poured into the Capital.

A group of State Agriculture Commissioners declared American farmers must increase production to solve the world-wide food problem.

"Without increased production, we are simply postponing to a little later date the time when America, like Europe, will be looking elsewhere for a place to buy its food," the group said in a statement.

"The President's program, as recommendable as it may be, is necessarily a stop-gap."

But, they said, "you can't get higher production without higher prices" and they described attempts to drive down food prices as "political, selfish and unfair to the American farmer, who is producing more and selling for less than any country on earth."

Charles Luckman, 38-year-old Chairman of the President's Food-Saving Campaign Committee, recruited a staff for the task ahead, and scheduled meetings with distillers for Wednesday to receive their answer to Mr. Truman's 60-day shutdown request, and with bakers, restaurateurs and others to get the huge grain-saving program into high gear.

Government experts, meanwhile, prepared "up-to-the-minute" information on economical foods, meat-saving devices and wheat-saving menus in line with Sec. of State Marshall's dictum that American foreign policy had now "taken a seat at the family table."

With reaction slow to develop from the Nation's grain marts, Agriculture Department officials served notice the Government had ample power to limit trading in grain futures—a power Mr. Truman said he would use if the exchange failed to raise its margins.

These officials explained that under the Commodity Exchange Act, the Government had authority to clamp a limit on the number of bushels of grain which a trader in grain futures might hold at any one time.

Sec. of Agriculture Anderson has blamed "excessive speculation" for high food prices, but exchange officials have replied the real reason is Government buying of food for export.

On the great Chicago Grain Mart, prices broke sharply Monday in the wake of Mr. Truman's call for wheat-saving measures, but rallied and closed with a good part of early losses cancelled. Early prices dropped as much as 10 cents in wheat, 7 cents in corn and 6 cents in oats. Chicago futures on butter and eggs also dropped the daily limit of three and two cents.

BASEBALL

relieving Shea, and he was even worse on Sunday.

But he was another Joe Page this sunny, balmy afternoon with the blue chips piled neck-high on the table. In his five innings of work Page faced fifteen men. Eddie Miksis, in the ninth, was the only Dodger to reach first, and he was promptly blotted out on a double play. Fifteen up—15 down. Who can handle that brand of pitching? The Dodgers couldn't.

The Yankees took full charge of the game in the sixth when Rizzuto singled and stole, scoring on Clark's single. In the seventh, Miksis lost Johnson's fly in the sun for a triple and another Yankee run, with Casey in the box. But this was not Casey's fault.

This series was slated as a relief pitchers' duel between Page and Casey, and that's the way it worked out. Casey won two games and Page won the last, but Casey, the tavern keeper, was magnificent throughout.

The fly ball Miksis lost in the sun was the only damage the Mighty Casey suffered in his six relief jobs as his fast ball, his curve and control held the Yankees at bay.

Just how Burt Shotton kept his Dodgers in this series through Monday's seventh game is still one of sport's major mysteries. The Yankees had three pitchers who could start and finish—Shea, Reynolds and Bevens. Shotton had no pitchers who could get by the fifth inning. The old Florida farmer tried Branca, Hatten, Gregg, Barney, Lombardi and several others. All were morning glories that bloomed and faded early in the sun.

Shotton was caught with a fast, hustling hard-fighting ball club that had no pitcher attached to its payroll. A brilliant defensive team carried the Dodgers' tottering pitchers along through the fifth inning of the last game until Joe Page arrived and shut the door on Brooklyn hopes.

Bases on balls and wild pitches dominated each game. It was the worst pitched series ever known, with both teams at fault but the Dodgers were the major offenders. The Yankees at least had Shea, Bevens and Page. The Dodgers had Casey—Casey and no one else. The brawny tavern keeper was practically the entire Dodger pitching staff.

The Dodgers threw away their clown make-up after the second game. From that point on they fought a better all-around team to the wire in a series that will never be forgotten for its fan appeal.

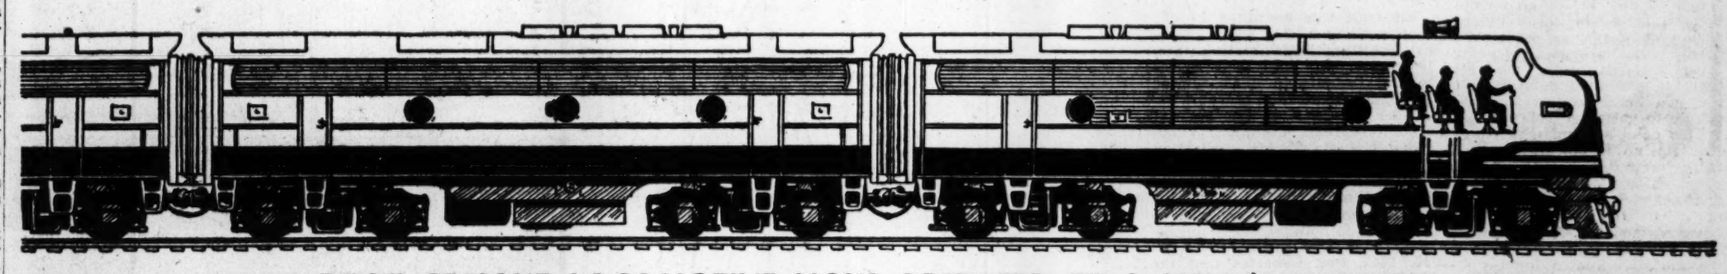

What else matters? The better team won—but it was almost outfought

HERE IS A 4-UNIT DIESEL FREIGHT LOCOMOTIVE NOW OPERATED BY 2 MEN (1 ENGINEER AND 1 FIREMAN)

2 BRAKEMEN AND 1 CONDUCTOR COMPLETE THE CREW OF THIS TRAIN [One brakeman usually rides in the locomotive in freight service]

—BUT THE UNION LEADERS WANT 15 EXTRA "SITTERS" ON THIS TRAIN . . . 3 ENGINEERS, 3 FIREMEN, 6 BRAKEMEN AND 3 CONDUCTORS . . . TO GO ALONG FOR THE RIDE AT FULL PAY!

It's to your interest to know about this proposed feather-bedding!

For sheer feather-bedding, this mock work proposal takes the cake. But it is only one of 44 "rules" demands filed by the leaders of the operating unions. If all these demands were granted, they would cost the railroads an added BILLION DOLLARS A YEAR.

Increased Wages, Too

On top of these "rules" changes, the leaders of the operating unions have filed an additional demand for a wage increase of over 30 per cent. If granted, this would be an added cost to the railroads of $400,000,000 a year.

$468,000,000 To Non-Operating Employes

In addition to this, an Arbitration Board has just granted a wage increase of 15½ cents an hour to the million employes represented by the 17 non-operating unions. This will cost the railroads $468,000,000 a year.

Where Will The Money Come From?

Where will all the money come from to pay these increases? They total several times as much as the railroads made in 1946 or will make in 1947.

In July, the railroads filed an application for increased freight rates to close the gap which then existed between wage and material costs, and railroad revenues. Since then it has been necessary, because of further increases in wages and material costs, to supplement that petition and to ask for an additional freight rate increase. No other course is open.

Railroads Do Not Run For Employes Alone

Railroads are operated for the benefit of not one, but several groups—shippers, passengers, employes, stockholders, and the general public. The interest of all must be served—and that cannot be done unless the railroads can operate efficiently and economically, and unless they are allowed to earn sufficient revenue to provide the kind of transportation service this country MUST HAVE.

Bridge Expert Goren Here For Lectures on His System

A man called Charles H. Goren, also known as the world's best bridge player, arrived in Atlanta Monday with a few observations on the game which has made his name a by-word in the homes of America.

He is here for a series of lectures at the Atlanta Woman's Club, sponsored by the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Club.

The popularity of bridge is on the upswing, Goren says, and since the end of the war, attendance at bridge contests, the sales of playing cards and interest shown by readers of Goren's daily bridge column in The Atlanta Constitution and 76 other newspapers have soared.

The author of a number of books on bridge, Goren practices a system of point bidding on an opening no trump bid which more and more has become standard procedure throughout the country.

Goren counts aces four, kings three, queens two and jacks one point and requires a count of between 16 and 19 for an opening one no trump bid. The bidder's partner must respond with a two bid if he has at least eight points. Then the first player who sees that the combined point total of the two hands equals 26 points can go to game.

This point system, which holds true for no trump bids only, is more accurate than the honor count, Goren believes. It also does not give information away to one's opponents the way some other methods do.

In this connection, Goren has become well known for his system of bidding aces and kings in the slam zone, rather than use the enormously popular Blackwood System. Goren believes that the Blackwood System is a one-way street because only one person can give information to his partner.

Bidding aces and kings after a suit has been agreed upon, however, has the advantage that both players of a team can exchange information and also can be more specific, Goren says.

On other scores, Goren feels that bridge penalties for insufficient bids or bidding out of turn should be changed. At present, he says the regulations are so complicated that he has to refer to a rule book whenever an infraction occurs.

Goren also waded fearlessly into the eternal argument as to whether men or women make the best bridge players.

In the top brackets, men win out because they have more stamina to withstand the rigors of a long tournament, yet women as a class are better than men because they devote more time to study, Goren observed.

Goren made one notable exception to his rule. He named Mrs. Margaret Wagar, of Atlanta, as one of the two best women bridge players in the world. Louise Sobel, one of Mrs. Wagar's friends, is the other. Both can give any man in the game a run for his money, he believes.

A native of Philadelphia, Goren travels about 100,000 miles a year to tournaments and lectures. Proceeds from his lectures here will go to Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Management House.

He is scheduled to speak at the Atlanta Woman's Club Tuesday at 11 a. m. and 2 p. m.; Wednesday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.; Thursday at 11 a. m., and Friday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Court Orders Regents to Pay $140,000

Judge Bond Almand, of Fulton Superior Court, Monday ordered the Regents of the University System of Georgia to pay former holders in the Company which operated Station WGST the sum of $140,000 plus interest at seven per cent.

The sum represents 15 percent of WGST monthly billings from August 1, 1945 to September 1, 1947.

The suit was instituted by W. E. Carroll and other stockholders in Southern Broadcasting Stations, Inc. who sold their shares to the Regents in 1943. Judge Almand held that the order of December 18, 1945 of the Federal Communications Commission denying Georgia Tech's application for a renewal of WGST's license had no bearing on the Board of Regents' obligation to fulfill its contract to pay the plaintiffs.

"There is nothing," said the decision, "in the contract of April 15, 1943, that indicates that the validity or enforcement of the contract was subject to any act of approval or disapproval of the FCC."

English Woman Fights For European Students

McKinley

Mrs. McKinley is serving as guest columnist while Doris Lockerman, Woman's News Editor, completes a special assignment.

By LENNA McKINLEY

Such compassion in a face so young could not be possible except for the fact that she has witnessed so much suffering.

This is the impression one gets in observing Phyllis Farley, of London, England, as she pleads the cause of the World Student Service Fund, an organization designed to help destitute university students in Central Europe and Asia.

Newly-appointed Regional Executive Secretary for this organization, Mrs. Farley came to Atlanta only a month ago, from where she will direct workers in nine Southern States in trying to raise $120,000 during the coming year to provide books, food and clothing for students abroad whose education was interrupted by years of gruelling war. The appeal will be restricted to students and teachers in high schools and colleges in this territory.

Mrs. Phyllis Farley

A graduate of the University of Edinburgh and a fluent linguist, Mrs. Farley first learned of World Student Relief work while a student at the University of London, where she will complete her requirements for a Ph. D. as soon as the urgency of her present mission is over.

She served as a research psychiatrist for the British Government during the war (where she was in the midst of several terrific bombings, and suffered the loss of members of her family and the demolition of her home) and, for the past 14 months, has been engaged in Student Relief work in Warsaw, Poland.

"It is a shocking contrast to come from Poland—where students sleep in classrooms and railroad stations, work without textbooks or classroom equipment, and subsist on one meal a day, entirely of starches—to your wonderful country of bounteous plenty and wonderful opportunity for young people," she said in a voice reflecting many unshed tears.

"There students go to class in hastily-repaired canteens or hostels, with no equipment other than their hungry minds thirsting for knowledge to build a better world. They are hungry and cold, yes, but they seem unaware of such physical trifles. 'Send us books and laboratory equipment,' they beg. 'We can make out on the clothes we have, and the one meal a day of potatoes or hominy which we can get here. But how can we become chemists without a laboratory, or how can we become artists without canvas and oils with which to work?' "

More than 75,000 young men and women are now enrolled for college work in Poland today, in contrast to 39,000 before the war, Mrs. Farley pointed out. And professors there report that students approach their work with great seriousness, as if to make up for the years lost since Hitler closed all schools in Poland in 1939.

"Conditions in Poland are duplicated in university centers all over Central Europe and Asia," she emphasized. "England and the western border countries of Europe do not benefit from the Student Fund because conditions there are not nearly so desperate.

"Last year British students themselves contributed 12 tons of food and an equal quantity of used clothing to their more unfortunate fellow-students. And, while the Scandinavian countries cannot send money out of their own States, they have co-operated beautifully by inviting professors and students to be their guests for a limited time, for hospitalization and study.

"We have been asked to increase our quota this year because we are now trying to extend aid through China, India, Burma and Indonesia.

"Students in the South are so warm-hearted and responsive," she said. "They have only to be told how desperate their fellow-students around the world are to dig down in their pockets with a substantial contribution. When we tell them that, if one dollar of the average five dollars spent by a typical American university student today were donated to our fund, it would take care of a student in Europe or Asia, they are willing to forego those luxuries of college life.

"There is a deeper significance to the co-operation of your boys and girls in the World Student Service Fund than its mere physical benefits," said Mrs. Farley. "The gesture has great moral and spiritual value in that it unites young people around the world through a bond of common understanding and common purpose. It is definitely a step forward to ultimate world peace."

Dietetic Chairman

Miss Hazel Hayden, Emory Hospital, President of the Georgia Dietetic Association, will be Chairman of Delegates from Georgia to the thirtieth annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association, Oct. 13 to 17, in Philadelphia. Dr. Mary Speirs, Georgia Experiment Station, Experiment, will also be a delegate.

Medical Auxiliary To Present Mrs. Wheeler in Lectures

Mrs. Esther Wheeler, noted lecturer, teacher, writer and artist in unique talks and demonstrations on floral art in the home, will be the guest of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fulton County Medical Society in a series of lectures and demonstrations on Nov. 11 and 12 at the Academy of Medicine, according to announcement by Mrs. Milton T. Edgerton, Auxiliary President.

Mrs. Wheeler easily rates as one of the three great floral artists of the country. She has not only been a judge of the New York Flower Show, but has won more blue ribbons in New York and New Jersey flower shows than any other exhibitor. She is a constant writer for "The Home Garden," and her article, "Flowers of Ancient Egypt," will appear in "Garden Gossip" for November. F. E. Rockwell's new book will include an article by Mrs. Wheeler.

MRS. ESTHER WHEELER

Mrs. Wheeler will open her series of "Decorative Studies for Special Occasions" on Nov. 11 at 11 a. m., with the subject, "Flowers in Oriental (or Chinese) Bronzes and Porcelains." At 2 p. m. on the same day she will discuss "Unusual Table Settings" and on Nov. 12 at 11 a. m., "Holiday Arrangements." She will explain theory with practical demonstrations.

Since the seating capacity of the auditorium in the Academy of Medicine is limited to 300, Garden Club members are requested to secure cards of admission through Mrs. Jeff Richardson, Dearborn 1034, or Mrs. Dewey Nabors, Cherokee 5198; Mrs. M. T. Edgerton, Vernon 9117, or any member of the Auxiliary.

Serving on the lecture committee are Mrs. Dewey Nabors, Chairman; Mrs. Jeff Richardson, Cochairman; Mesdames Ed Greene, Jake Sauls, Hal Davison, H. Walker Jernigan, Raymond Arp, Don Cathcart, B. L. Shackleford, Vernon Powell, Phinizy Calhoun, Jr., C. J. McLoughlin, Mason Lowance, F. C. Holden, D. A. Thompson, Murdock Equen, Olin Cofer, George Fuller, Ward B. Duvall and Clifton Kemper.

Mrs. O. V. Scott, Jr., will motor to Huntsville, Ala., today, where she will be an attendant in the wedding of Miss Sue Hutchens when she becomes the bride of Charles Walton Henson, Jr., of Monroe, on Saturday evening.

Simaika-Lorish

Mrs. Bets Wilson Simaika, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wilson, of Chicago, became the bride of Fred M. Lorish, of Chicago, at a quiet ceremony here yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young Wilson attended the bridal couple.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2 hearts | Pass | 3 diamonds | Pass |
| 4 clubs | Pass | 5 clubs | Pass |
| 6 clubs | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Jack of spades.

When several lines of attack are open to declarer selection of the winning play will frequently simmer down to a sheer guess, and where one chance is about as good as the other Lady Luck will select the winner. More often, however, it will be found that one line of play is distinctly superior in that it is more likely to succeed. Making the best selections in these cases is what is meant by "playing percentages."

Today's hand provided an interesting choice, South was attempting to bring home a contract of six clubs into which he had virtually catapulted himself. West led the jack of spades. With eyes focused on his own hand, South decided it would be necessary to ruff out the hearts. He won with the spade queen in dummy, led a heart to the ace and ruffed a heart. Returned to his own hand with a spade and ruffed another heart. This was overruffed by East, who returned a trump and declarer could not avoid the loss of a heart trick at the end.

South, to be sure, was the victim of a bad break, but in my opinion did not select the best line of play. He kept his eye on the wrong hand. Note that dummy is solid except for the diamond honors. The hand should be managed in such a way that if East has either diamond honor (not to mention both) the contract will be assured. The opening lead should be won by South, and the ace of clubs shows that the trumps are not all in one hand. Three rounds should be drawn, winding up with the queen in dummy. The king of diamonds is led. If East plays the ace, all cares vanish. If he does not, a discard is taken. If it loses to west, dummy is re-entered with the queen of spades, and the jack of diamonds led thru with the hope that East has the queen.

If West has both honors, the hand will be lost, but the odds are about three to one against it. For the benefit of those who may be interested in the mathematics of the situation it may be stated that 52 percent of the times two outstanding honors will be in different hands, of the 48 cases in which they are both in the same hand they will be found 24 times in the West hand and 24 times in the East hand. This renders the odds about 76 to 24 that the recommended line of play will win the hand.

Cupid on Rampage Again ---Darts Aimed at Widows

Cupid is on the rampage again—this time having aimed his darts at charming Atlanta widows!

Some of them are denying it, of course, but others are telling their best friends. And at least one has reached the stage of admitting it freely. She, a widow of several years, will wed in November, and will not change her residence from a show place on one of the city's most fashionable thoroughfares. Her fiance is Tennessean by birth, and has never been married.

Another, who is exceedingly well known in literary and newspaper circles, will not change her name when she weds the second time, but she will go abroad to live. That is, her future husband lives in a foreign country, but she expects to divide her time between his home there and her home here. She plans to visit his country during the early Winter, and—who knows?—perhaps the wedding will take place then.

A glamorous widow, whose husband was killed in the Pacific, will wed a swain from a neighboring State, so the report goes. She visited in his home town recently and lost her heart completely to a handsome young interne, if rumor can be relied upon. They have not yet set the wedding date.

Another war widow is reported on the matrimonial path. Her husband, an American flyer, was killed in the European theater. She is another who will not change her name when she marries for the second time.

Here's one about a widower—the relieved variety! His name was connected with at least two lovely Atlanta widows during the past year when he resided here. Now comes a report that he will wed a Montgomery divorcee, and it will be her fifth venture, though only his second. He is now on leave of absence from one of the State's leading educational institutions.

These should keep you busy for quite a spell; that is, if you're not particularly good at guessing!

Women Optimists, Writer Declares

By TRILLE GERMON

I have just read a very important article in a trade magazine. "The Insurance Salesman for Life Insurance Field Workers." The article is written by Donald B. Woodward, Second Vice President, Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York. The article is entitled: "Women Are Here To Stay." Since it is the man's viewpoint of woman's contribution to the business world, it is significant and interesting. Would you like me to tell you about it?

Woodward says the real reason he is sure women are here to stay is that women are optimists and the reason he isn't sure of men is that men are pessimists. He explains the meaning of the word, "here." "Here," he says, "means in the business world, working, having incomes, handling money." He points out that modern homes and labor-saving devices coupled with smaller families, gives the woman more free time. He works it all out very logically, citing chores formerly done by the woman in the home, "tending chickens, gathering eggs, milking cows, making a vegetable garden, and rearing 8 to 15 children," and observes: "All this was almost enough to keep "the weaker sex" occupied."

Woodward says while the modern home needs the woman's time less and less, the business world offers her increasing variety of jobs at better and better pay, and "every job it has offered her it has found she can do as well as men—and often better . . ."

Because nine out of 10 WCGs may not read this very interesting article, I would like to quote and condense some more of it. May I? Thank you. And thank YOU, Mr. Woodward! You'll be a very popular man with WCGs, I promise.

LISTEN TO THE MAN, Girls: "Working women are helping to make this a better world—and they are going to help make it a much better one . . . I want to repeat and emphasize that work by women is important and economically and socially desirable. . . Women work for exactly the same reason men work: to support themselves and their dependents. A long series of studies, the latest being one just reported by the Department of Labor, shows that the great majority of working women are contributing to dependents as well as helping themselves."

Why, the man is inspired! Of course, he is telling folks—men—how to sell Us life insurance, but we can learn by listening, so listen to this: "Feminine psychology is different from that of the male. Women are optimists and brave. Don't try to scare them . . . that approach works with men, but it makes a woman mulish. Women look at facts and make up their own minds in their own sweet—and we benighted men may think peculiar-way."

He concludes: "When making a presentation to the girls, be specific and make it simple. They will get the point even if it's complicated, but they won't like you for making it complicated. Always remember that women have never been convinced that life has to be as complicated as men have made it—especially lawyers, actuaries, accountants, economists and the like—and they instinctively resent evidences of this male nonsense. Incidentally, I think they're right."

If you will let me tell you just one more thing he said, I'll give you a few percentages you will be interested in. In 1910, he says, there were only about 7,500,000 working girls. By 1910, the number upped to 12,500,000; and by 1950, he predicts, it will be above 16,000,000. "A careful study at Bryn Mawr in 1945 concluded that: 'one out of every three women over 14 in tomorrow's America will have a job.' The number of women in white collar and semi-skilled jobs has been rising even faster, having more than doubled between 1910 and 1940, and still rising."

One Thing Stands Out In My Mind: "Women work for exactly the same reason men work: To support themselves and their dependents." Since this is true, it follows logically that the woman's time is as important as the man's time, and she should command the same wages as a man in the same position. She should not be paid less "just because she is a woman." Am I right, or am I wrong? If I am right, what is the answer? You tell me!

FRANCES ROBERTS, Secretary to R. W. (Bob) Schilling, told me the other day, "A woman has to be TWICE as smart to go HALF as far as a man." Sad, but true, FRANCES. And don't you like the way Woodward uses the expression, "Tomorrow's America" If we work real hard and intelligently on Today's America, Tomorrow's America will be an ideal place for WCGs! All together now—let's simplify this complicated life, as men have made it! "As men have made it"—he said it, the MAN did and YOU heard him!

Dear Bosses (Plural): We STILL like yo'all, but you better be good!

JOHNNY BRADBERRY

The Football Already Is Bouncing Funny

Three weeks ago, if anyone had said Vanderbilt and Ole Miss would be undefeated and Alabama and Tennessee twice beaten at this point of the season, he would have been confined to a suitable institution.

Yet a lot of I-told-you-sos are running lose now and it is perfectly all right because that's exactly what has happened.

Even if they don't win another game this season, which may not be as farfetched as it sounds in this whacky campaign, eternal credit should be given Red Sanders, the Vandy coach, and Johnny Vaught, of Ole Miss, the latter trying his hand at the top job for the first time.

Sanders, especially, has done a good job because his victims were Northwestern, a team which Saturday whipped UCLA, and Alabama. Vaught's biggest win was over Kentucky and he stretched the streak against Florida and South Carolina, two lesser lights of Dixie.

The Vandy coach, who formerly held the reins up at Riverside, previously has won the "Coach of the Year" award in the Southeastern Conference. Both he and Vaught are strong candidates again.

All-Americans With the season just settling down, who are outstanding All-American prospects of the league?

Certainly any list should include Chuck Connerly, passing and kicking star of Ole Miss. Vandy contributes John North, a husky, pass-catching end.

Nearer home, it's difficult to see how Georgia's two ends, Dan Edwards and Weyman Sellers, could be left off. Bob Davis and Dinky Bowen are Tech's outstanding candidates at this time.

Even in defeat, Alabama's Harry Gilmer has maintained his high standard of play. Ed Price, a hard-running halfback, appears the strongest among the Tulane Greenies, and, of course, LSU's Y. A. Tittle, despite losing to Georgia, is still a great quarterback.

Climb for Bulldogs Over at Athens Monday they ceased celebrating Georgia's LSU victory and settled down to the realization that there is still quite a hill to climb before the coasting can begin.

The Bulldogs travel to Lexington this week for their third straight tough one and, although they will be favored for the first time this season since the Furman game, no picnic is expected.

Bear Bryant seems to have settled his Kentucky team down following its defeat at the hands of Ole Miss three weeks ago and it will offer a serious threat to Georgia's Conference title aspirations.

Bryant installed a new T-formation this season and it is just now starting to click. He easily defeated a tough Cincinnati club two weeks ago and came back for another easy win over Xavier last Saturday night.

On the other hand, Georgia has been battling North Carolina and LSU and whether Wally Butts can keep his club "up" for the third straight week remains to be seen.

Tech vs. VMI Out at the Flats, Tech went back to work following their second straight league victory, figuring to be able to use some of their freshman backs a lot against VMI Saturday.

Coach Bobby Dodd doesn't exactly fear VMI, but he does respect the Kaydets, realizing full well that this, of all seasons, is not one to underestimate an opponent.

The Yellow Jackets emerged somewhat battered from their game with Tulane, but all important injuries are expected to be healed by Saturday with the exception of those of Dinky Bowen, Dan Bradach and Tom Coleman. Either of these boys probably could play if needed but if possible Dodd will hold them out in order to get them completely ready for the Auburn game on Oct. 18.

The Techs figure to win their next three games and stretch their winning streak before running into tough November opponents like Alabama, Duke, Navy and Georgia.

Tidwell Down at Montgomery for a meeting of the Quarterback Club, there was some discusion among Auburn alumni as to whether Travis Tidwell would reach his full effectiveness this season.

The general opinion is that the sensational freshman of 1946 will be able to handle his passes as well as ever from here on out, but a badly sprained ankle, incurred the same time as his broken leg, will prevent him from reaching last year's running form.

Consequently, Tidwell's aerials may not be as effective as they were because when the opposition realizes a passer cannot run it will drop back and make it difficult for receivers to get open.

There's one thing about it. If will to play can cure a bad ankle, Tidwell will be out there 60 minutes. He wants action and is determined to get it. That's what enables football players to compete with injuries which would have the ordinary citizen in the hospital.

Leo's Baseball Status Nearing Answer Stage

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—The question of Leo Durocher's status in baseball appeared to be reaching the answer stage Monday night.

Throughout the day baseball circles buzzed with the rumor that after the final game of the World Series President Branch Rickey, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, would announce Durocher had been chosen to manage the club in 1948.

But after the Brooks lost the game and the championship to the Yankees, nothing came from official Dodger quarters.

Some sources said that Rickey still was waiting to hear from Commissioner A. B. Chandler on the status of Durocher, suspended at the beginning of the season for "conduct detrimental to baseball."

It was recalled that Walter Mulbry, Secretary to Chandler, in answer to newsmen's questions last week, had said that "Durocher's suspension will be lifted the minute the World Series is ended."

Chandler, when asked about Durocher as he visited the Dodger dressing room after Monday's game, said "No comment." The Commissioner could not be reached immediately Monday night.

Dickey, when asked after the game about Durocher's status, was reminded of Mulbry's statement. "Durocher was suspended by Mr. Chandler, not by Mr. Mulbry," Rickey said. "We are waiting for an official announcement from the Commissioner."

Yanks Belt Dodgers, 5-2, To Capture Title

Joe Page Hero in Relief Role

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—Spectacular relief pitching by Lefthander Joe Page, who permitted only one Brooklyn Dodger to reach base in the last five innings, enabled the Yankees to coast through to a 5-2 victory in the seventh and deciding game of the World Series at the Stadium Monday before 71,548 fans.

Shelled from the mound only the previous day, the Yankee ace relief came back to throttle the scrapping National Leaguers after he took over at the start of the fifth frame Monday with his club holding a precarious 3-2 lead. He faced only 15 batters in slamming the door in the Dodgers' faces, a double play wiping out the only man to hit him safely after one was out in the ninth.

The victory, gained after seven days of hectic struggle, gave the Yankees their 11th World Championship in 15 times they had reached the fall classic. All records both for attendance and receipts were broken in the course of the fluctuating duel between the cross-river rivals.

Sharing honors with Page in scoring the decisive triumph were Little Phil Rizzuto, the Yankees' scampering shortstop, and a pair of youthful utility stars, Bobby Brown and Al Clark, whom Manager Bucky Harris plucked from the bench at critical moments to throw barbs into the Brooks.

Rizzuto slammed three of the winners' seven hits off five Brooklyn flingers, drove across one run and scored two more. He had a hand in each of the Yankees' first four runs, one way or another. His final contribution was to make a brilliant stop and throw of a sharp grounder by Catcher Bruce Edwards and convert it into the double play which ended the series.

Brown, making his fourth appearance of the play-off as a pinch hitter, belted a double to knock in the Yankees' second run to tie the score in the fourth, and Clark put the count forever beyond reach of the Dodgers by clouting across the winners' fourth score in the sixth.

Brown's three hits in three official times at bat during the series set a record. On his other try, in the first game, the young utility infielder drew a walk at a crucial point in the Yankees' first big rally of the series.

The Dodgers scored both runs today in the second inning, when they pasted the Yank starter, Frank Shea, and his successor, Bill Bevens, for four solid hits, including a triple by Gene Hermanski and a double by Johnny Jorgensen. With that one outburst, Manager Burt Shotton's battlers were through for the year.

A single through third base by Edwards in the fourth inning and another one-baser by Ed Miksis after one was out in the ninth, summed up their efforts thereafter. Bevens, the unfortunate who lost a one-hitter during the Series, was not knocked out, but retired for a pinch-hitter after he had wrenched his arm on a pitch during the fourth frame.

Trailing by two runs at the outset, the Yanks got one back in the second, when Hal Gregg, the Dodger starter, handed out a brace of walks and Rizzuto slashed the first of his three hits over third base.

Gregg settled down to retire the Yanks in the third, but they set

The Bums Dressed And Went on Home

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers dressed and went home after Monday's final game of the World Series.

That's all there was left for them to do. And it was as simple and matter of fact as that.

There was no weeping, wailing or gnashing of teeth in the Dodger dressing room after their 5-2 defeat by the New York Yankees in the payoff battle of this post-season classic.

They gave the mighty Yankees quite a wrestle while it lasted, but just weren't quite good enough. Although the defeated athletes didn't say much, you could tell they felt they had given the Yanks a run for their money.

"I have no regrets," said Burt Shotton, the silver-thatched pilot of the Dodgers, who stepped out of retirement to take the helm when Leo Durocher was suspended.

"The Dodgers are a great team, and they'll be greater next year. We did all we could. We tried, but we couldn't quite make it.

"The better club won this time. But we'll beat the Yanks more times in the next 10 years than they'll beat us."

Asked about his own plans for next season, Shotton thought a moment, and then declared: "That will come in due time."

Somebody asked him to analyze the Yankee victory.

"They got more runs than we did," he answered simply, the twinkle returning to his eyes for the first time.

Dodger President Branch Rickey accompanied Shotton on the long walk from dugout to clubhouse, his arm draped around Barney's shoulders.

Tight-lipped and sad-faced, they entered the visitors' dressing room deep under Yankee Stadium. For fully ten minutes the door remained locked to outsiders while the two men comforted their hirelings in privacy.

"We got beat by a darn good team," said Rickey as he emerged. "Any team with Henrich and DiMaggio on it has got to be great. No, put DiMaggio first."

Ford Frick, President of the National League, arrived at that point and was escorted inside by Rickey, while reporters and photographers remained outside.

Knocked Out by Yanks

Then came Commissioner A. B. Chandler, who was asked about Durocher's status and what he thought of Larry MacPhail's retirement as Yankee President.

"No comment," the Commissioner answered to both questions.

The door was open to Chandler and the press at the same time. The Commissioner went straight to Shotton, offered him his hand and whispered some words meant only for the Dodger skipper.

By that time, most of the players had showered and were dressing quietly or sitting silently in front of their lockers, gazing into space.

"If I were a drinking man, I'd join you in a few," Dixie Walker told a reporter. "But I guess there's nothing to do but go home."

Perhaps the least unhappy of the lot were Cookie Lavagetto and Al Gionfriddo. These two bench warmers posed smilingly for photographers, looking as if they had won the series. They almost did, at that.

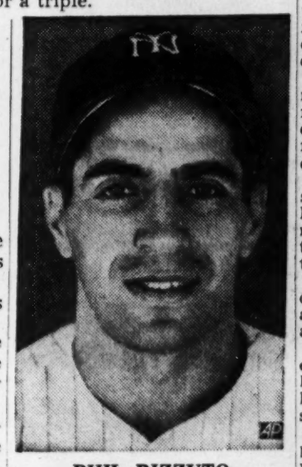

One of the last to come from the shower room was Eddie Stanky, the scrappy little second baseman. Stanky said the Yanks won because of their strength down the middle.

"Stirnweiss, Rizzuto, Page and Robinson won for them," he declared. "If Robinson had been catching from the start, the series never would have gone seven games."

"When you're playing Bucky Harris, you're battling a great guy," Shotton said later. "I can't get through the crowd to congratulate him, but I want you fellows to do it for me in the papers."

Shotton said Rickey told the Dodgers:

"You're the best club in the leage, and you'll be better.'"

St. Pete Not Excited Over Yankee Win

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP)—St. Petersburg, Spring training home of the Worlds Champion New York Yankees, rejoiced Monday at the Yanks' victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers without yielding to undue excitement.

This was the seventh Yankee team to win the championship after training here and local fans seemed to expect another series victory and took it in stride.

Tech Aided By Ziegler's Fine Play

By GEORGE TISINGER

Let's talk about Frank Ziegler. He's the fullback, you know, who started and played a lot of minutes when Georgia Tech gathered 47 points against none for the opposition in two games.

Ziegler was the second choice for Dinky Bowen's fullback post when the season opened, but then they changed Dinky to the right halfback spot and that left Mr. Ziegler with a chance. He made the most of it.

Down in New Orleans Frank zipped and dodged to his heart's content and though he was written up as fumbling a few times he racked up one score and did yeoman work during the other times when he wasn't running.

Ziegler is just one of those folks who play football. He loves to get in there and strike back. And coaches say that Frank did one of his best jobs against Tulane.

He blocked with ferocity, he ran like a bantam rooster looking for his home coop and though he dropped the ball a few times, folks forgot it. You see, he scored and did some other things.

Backfield Coach Dwight Keith says that the fellow is so fast that he runs away from the "T." He naturally takes the idea faster than some of his mates. By the time they say "go," Frank is gone.

And don't think the coaches didn't praise him to the skies and all that for his performance against the Greenies.

Georgia Tech took it easy Monday. Coach Bobby Dodd had taken his charges over the jumps in two hard ones and as "Old Dodge" said, "They needed the rest."

"Dodge" gave his boys a small party in New Orleans after their victory. It wasn't too big but they know that the coach played with them just as much as if he was physically active out there where the damage is done.

Back home in Atlanta, the boys figured they had the soft day coming. All were more or less skinned up, with the only major damage being done to Dinky Bowen's knee, and Dan Bradach's broken hand. Both will take it easy for awhile, but will be ready when needed.

MacPhail Quits Baseball After Yanks Win Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—President Larry MacPhail announced his retirement as president of the New York Yankees in the dressing room today after his club had won the world championship by defeating Brooklyn.

The Yankee President, in hot water with the office of Commissioner A. B. Chandler, resigned his office and retired from baseball because of "poor health." MacPhail said he would explain more fully later.

Dan Topping, one of MacPhail's partners, said "I'm taking this with a grain of salt." When Del Webb, another co-owner, was asked about the retirement he said he agreed with Topping.

It was MacPhail who charged Leo Durocher, then manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, with "conduct detrimental to baseball" last Spring. As a result of these charges, Durocher finally was banned from baseball for the 1947 season by Chandler's office after hearings at both Sarasota, Fla., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

After MacPhail was quoted in an interview by Harry Nash, of the Newark News, in late April as saying Chandler "did not have enough to suspend Leo for five minutes," he was summoned to Chandler's office in Cincinnati May 1. It never was announced what happened.

Recently both Chandler and MacPhail have gone to great lengths to make appearances together in public, one of them during the World Series in front of the Yankee bench.

MacPhail's contract as Yankee President was supposed to run through 1950 and he recently said he had signed a new five-year pact. It has been rumored for some time that his holdings in the Yankee baseball and football empire would be sold on the stock market, but this has been denied twice by MacPhail.

MacPhail said his retirement was effective immediately. He made the announcement with tears streaming down his face.

MacPhail is the only man in baseball to serve as executive head of three major league organizations and he is the only man who has headed pennant-winning clubs in both leagues.

Entering baseball in 1931 when he purchased the Columbus club, of the American Association, MacPhail served as President of the team from 1931 to 1934. He headed Cincinnati from 1934 to 1937 and moved to Brooklyn from 1937 until he resigned at the close of the 1942 season to enter the Army, where he served as a colonel.

In association with Del E. Webb and Dan R. Topping, MacPhail purchased the Yankees in 1945 for $2,900,000.

Among the accomplishments credited to MacPhail in baseball are: Inauguration of night ball in the majors in Cincinnati; an all-time five-year attendance record during his stay in Brooklyn and a single season attendance mark with the Yanks in 1946.

MacPhail was Chairman of the Joint Major League Policy Committee in 1946 which revised player contracts and set up the retirement pension fund.

During World War I he spent five years with the armed forces, commanding a battalion of field artillery and serving as assistant to the Under Secretary of War in World War II.

MacPhail went from player to player, hugging them and laughing.

Center of congratulations was the quiet, reserved Yankee manager, Bucky Harris, who led the Washington Senators to victory in the World Series of 1924, and was MacPhail's unexpected choice last Winter as Yankee manager.

"If anybody is entitled to the credit, it's this fellow," said MacPhail, putting his hand on Harris' shoulder.

"He's one of the finest gentlemen made.

"George Weiss (Yankee Vice President) built the club that won. I built up the ball club that lost"—a reference to MacPhail's former position with the Dodgers.

Ford Frick, National League President, and Commissioner A. B. Chandler were early arrivals to congratulate Harris.

"A great ball club and a great series," said Chandler.

"They gave you a real battle," said Frick, extending his hand to Harris. "I'm going to die of bases on balls."

"Me, too," laughed Harris. Passes were frequent on both sides during the seven games.

Harris came the closest to shouting he ever has when he first entered the dressing rooms.

"To Joe Page. To Joe Page," he exclaimed, grinning broadly.

"Back there in the fifth, after Bevens had hurt his arm, Johnny Schulte sent back word from the bullpen that Allie Reynolds and Page were both warming up, and that Reynolds had good stuff, but that Page didn't look as if he had it.

"So I sent back the order: Bring on Page."

He laughed quietly.

"That's because I knew he doesn't show much in the bullpen. Just out on the mound."

Page himself said that he threw virtually nothing but fast balls in setting down the Dodgers one-two-three for five consecutive innings.

"They hit my curve ball Sunday, so I just gave 'em the fast one. I threw very hard. And now I'm going to do nothing at all."

"Now I can go kill a few birds," said Bucky. "Believe me, I'm nervous. It's been a long time, but we finally got through."

Braves Sign Southworth To New Pact

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—Lou Perini, President of the Boston Braves, announced Monday night that Billy Southworth had been given a new five-year contract to manage the National Leaguers at a salary "something in excess of $250,000."

Southworth was working on a three-year contract, but that was torn up and the new one is effective beginning 1948 and for the following five years, Perini said, adding:

"A month ago I spoke to Southworth in Cincinnati and told him I wanted to sit down and talk to him about a contract for the next five years."

Southworth, present at a news conference when Perini made the announcement, said:

"I realize I have a great responsibility to the Boston owners who placed a great deal of confidence in me and I want to justify that confidence.

"We contacted every major league club in an effort to make a deal to help our club. We have laid the groundwork for a couple of trades and purchases which we expect to be consummated at the majors-minors meetings in December."

Perini, asked point-blank whether he had made an offer to Sam Breadon, President of the St. Louis Cardinals, for Shortstop Marty Marion, confessed "What club wouldn't like to have Marion?"

But, Perini explained, "There's another guy on that club who we are more interested in getting. That is Slaughter (Outfielder Enos Slaughter)."

Deavers Earns Job At Tackle

By JACK JACKSON

ATHENS, Oct. 6—Chances are that as a result of their showing in Saturday's win over LSU, five Georgia Bulldogs will handle the left half and fullbacking duties in this week's tilt with Bear Bryant's Kentucky Wildcats.

Although Wally Butts had Freshman Lukie Brunson and Soph Al Bodine running at the first-string spots Monday Stan Nestorak, Billy Henderson and Floyd (Breezy) Reid all showed well enough against the Tigers to warrant regular play. Nestorak, a senior, sparked the Bulldogs in the second half surge, while Henderson gained consistently on quick openers and both will share the spot with Brunson.

Butts plans to alternate the three.

Reid may play most of the offense at full, with the powerful Bodine carrying the defensive load. Reid's running Saturday stamped him as one of the most dangerous Bulldog backs.

Clayton Deavers, Gatesville, Texas, junior, probably will get the call at right tackle in place of Carl George. Deavers, big and a powerful tackler, offers better defensive play than the Valdosta soph. Incidentally, if Deavers does start, the Bulldogs will have Gatesville boys side by side on the right side of the line, since Cpt. Dan Edwards also hails from that Texas city. On the left side, both guard and tackle, Herb St. John and Jack Bush, are Jacksonville, Fla., boys.

Georgia came out of the Tiger game in good physical condition, although Jim Gatewood, defensive ace, suffered another bruise on his bad shoulder. He should be ready Saturday, Trainer Neal Alford reports.

Bulldog scouts who saw Kentucky trim Zavier Saturday report that the Cats will offer another severe test for the Georgians. Despite their early season loss to Ole Miss. Bryant has several of the South's top freshman performers, and a running ace in veteran Dopey Phelps.

It'll be the seventh meeting of the two teams, Georgia holding a four-to-one edge in wins. The 1940 game was a 7-7 tie. Georgia won last year, 28 to 13.

The Bulldogs will fly to Lexington Friday morning in time for an afternoon workout. The game will be the Bulldogs' second night affair this season.

Southern Cage Loop Sets Opening Dates

Winner of the 50-game regular season will be declared league champion. A Shaughnessy playoff will start immediately after the end of the regular season.

Raymond Johnson, Nashville, is commissioner of the League.

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE, BUT TRUE

Imagine Trippi Not Passing, Playing Defense; He's Decoy Now

By F. M. WILLIAMS

Charley Trippi doesn't look like the same football player as a pro as he did as an All-American at the University of Georgia, but he's serving the purpose of winning ball games for the Chicago Cardinals about as effectively.

Trippi is used rarely on defense, or at least that was the case Sunday when the Cardinals whipped their across-town rivals, the Chicago Bears 31 to 7. He never passes, an art in which he excelled at Georgia, and he dashes into the line on quick-opening plays only occasionally. That used to be one of the best things he did at Georgia.

Coach Jimmy Conzelman, instead, chooses to use Charley as a decoy and let the 10 other Cardinals inflict the actual damage to opponents.

The present system is swell for Trippi. He doesn't have to take any punishment, which means he'll be able to stick around a lot longer.

But, on the other hand, the opposition might quit worrying about the boy if his ability isn't brought into better use pretty soon.

Just how much the pros fear Trippi now was shown Sunday. Every time he was used as a flanker, either to the right or the left, the Bear linebackers always shifted in that direction. It was easy for Paul Christman to toss to receivers on the other side of the field.

Christman throws to Trippi just often enough to keep him a threat, and every time he did against the Bears, Charley was thoroughly covered.

Coach Wallace Butts, who watched the game, thinks Trippi is a better passer than either Christman or the heralded Sid Luckman, the aging Bear star who is nearing the end of the road in pro football.

"At least Charley throws overhanded," Butts explained, "and neither one of the others do. I don't think you can pass sidearmed and pass accurately."

One thing that pained the Georgia coach about the pro game was the lack of blocking. But, on the other hand, he was impressed with the fierceness and accuracy of both teams' tackling.

ANYONE WHO thinks Georgia and Notre Dame are going to meet on the gridiron should have seen BUTTS and FRANK LEAHY, coach of the Irish, in a Sherman Hotel room Sunday night.

They were swapping their pet plays faster than horse traders, and future grid foes don't do that.

And, as both of them said in denying the rumor, "it looks like one of us would know something about it."

LEAHY, who spent several hours with Butts after the game, doesn't see how his Irish can go through the season undefeated, because he doesn't think his team is good enough at left halfback.

But the Notre Dame mentor believes his JOHNNY LUJACK is good enough to play for anybody, and at any backfield position.

"Johnny's the best defensive back I've ever coached," shedding new light on the boy who is generally acknowledged as the best passer in collegiate circles today.

ARTIE PEW, who put in a year of pro football after finishing a great career at Georgia away back yonder, went to the Bear-Cardinal game with Coach Butts "just to see if my memory of the game was correct."

Artie wasn't at all impressed. He'll take his football college variety in the future.

Butts, who did everything from smashing his fist into the ground to praying during the LSU GAME, was so sore Sunday morning he could hardly move.

"It's from being under such a nervous strain, not from exercising," the LITTLE ROUND MAN said. "Reckon I can last at this game ten more years?"

Then he answered his own question:

"I can't if I have to go through many more like this one. It better hurry up and get over."

RICHMOND STAR RULED INELIGIBLE; SIGNED BY GIANTS

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 6—(AP)—With the full approval of the Executive Committee, Colonel William Couper, President of the Southern Conference, Monday ruled Vernon T. Morgan, the University of Richmond's three-sport athlete, ineligible to engage in intercollegiate athletics in the Southern Conference.

Morgan, who admitted signing a professional baseball contract with the New York Giants during the Summer of 1944, has been kept out of the Spiders' first three football games this season pending a ruling from Colonel Couper.

Dapper Traded For 5 Players

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 6—(AP)—The Mobile Bears Monday traded their No. 1 catcher and Southern Association's most valuable player, Cliff Dapper, to the Montreal Royals for five players.

Club President Edgar Allen announced that the Bears would get Pitchers Jean Roy, Paul Malady and Rube Melton, Infielder Gil Torres and Outfielder Homer Matney.

Matney played center field for the Bears during the past season, and Melton is a former major leaguer.

Dapper batted close to .300 in helping to lead Mobile to a Southern Association pennant and a Shaughnessy play-off victory.

The Bears also announced sale of Pitcher Pat McGlothin, a fastball right-hander, to St. Paul of the American Association.

Accept Olympic Bids

LONDON, Oct. 6—(AP)—Panama and Iran have accepted invitations to compete in the 1948 Olympic games at London, bringing the total acceptances to 50 nations, the British organizing committee announced Monday. Ten other nations have been invited.

Psychology Helped Us, Butts Says

"The importance of psychology in football was never better demonstrated than in Athens last Saturday." Coach Wallace Butts told the Atlanta Touchdown Club at its regular meeting Monday in the Ansley Hotel.

Coach Butts, principal speaker at "Georgia Day," said his Bulldogs weren't given a chance to whip the Tigers before hand and that evidently LSU believed what was in the papers. As a result Georgia won, 35 to 19.

"It was just the exact reversal of what happened in 1945, when we were supposed to run LSU off the fie'd and instead they almost killed us," Coach Butts said.

The Georgia mentor, arriving late at the meeting because a plane from Chicago, where he had attended Sunday's game between the Chicago Bears and the Chicago Cardinals was late getting into Atlanta, kept his audience in stitches throughout his talk.

Commenting on football in general, Coach Butts predicted Georgia Tech would continue its way to national recognition, saying that only Alabama stood in the Jackets' way to coming up to the game with his team undefeated.

"Alabama hasn't been too impressive, but don't forget, Gilmer is still around and he might beat you any time," Wally said.

Backfield Coach Bill Hartman talked briefly to the club before Coach Butts arrived for the meeting.

Despite the fact the Touchdowners were forced to meet in the tiny Burgundy Room instead of their usual place in the Civic Room of the Ansley, it was still one of the biggest meetings of the year.

Georgia Tech will be honored next week, with Coach Bobby Dodd the main speaker.

THE 'WILL TO WIN' AT ITS PEAK

Bass Eleven, Vowing To Score, Works Out 160 Miles From Home Morning After Game

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

The will to win is an important factor in football, 'tis said. If it is, little Bass High, without a victory and without a score in three games, is due to start winning right away. No bunch of boys has more will to win than they.

Herbert (Swede) Phillips boys had been trounced by powerful Griffin High, still undefeated, in their opener by a 27-0 count. They had been eked out by O. V. Bruner's Roosevelt eleven, 6-0, in their first City League game.

The boys from Little Five Points had their hearts set on hitting the win column down in Augusta last Friday against Sully Sullivan's Richmond Academy team. Destiny, however, dealt them a deuce off the bottom of the deck and deuces weren't wild. The Musketeers are one of the best teams in the State and Bass was blanked again, this time 32 to 0.

Tears streamed down the boys' faces as they laboriously shucked off head gears, pads and cleated shoes in the dressing room after the game. They tearfully vowed they were going to score next time; they were going to win and they were going to do something about it.

They weren't going to wait until next week to start getting ready for their game at Decatur against Grady next Thursday. They were going to start right away, the first thing in the morning.

The boys were tired and bruised. One of their number, Guard Tony Draper had suffered a broken foot in the game, but the Bass boys were thinking only of getting ready to try for a score, a win next week. They implored Coach Phillips to let them work out next morning. They wanted to be ready.

So that's how it was that a gang of Atlanta youngsters—youngsters with a flaming spirit—dragged their aches and pains from the caress of soft, white sheets at 6 o'clock in the morning last Saturday to work out for a game that won't take place until next Thursday.

Boys, 160 miles from home, blocked and tackled and ran and tried to correct the mistakes of yesterday on the field which saw them suffer bitter defeat the night before.

Two long hours they worked and sweated until there was just time left to bathe and catch the 11:45 train for Atlanta.

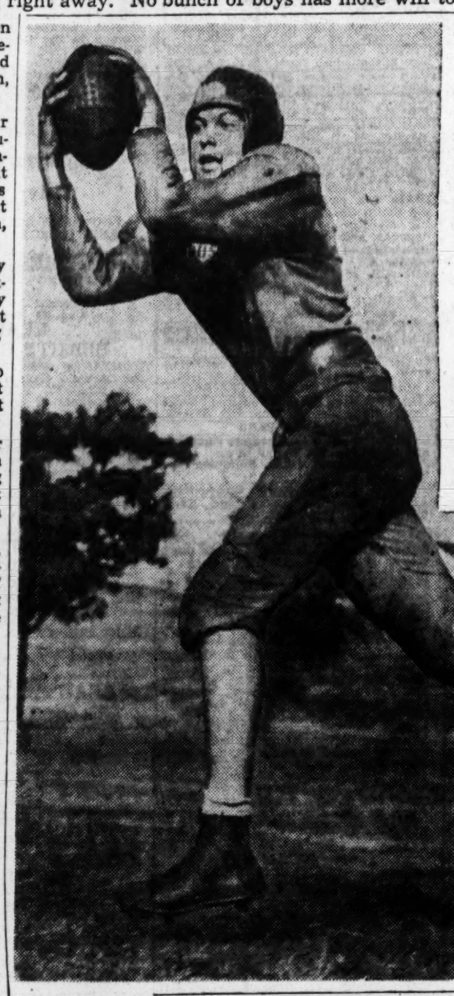

The youngsters wanted to work out again Sunday, on their off day, but Coach Phillips nixed that.

Such is the spirit of a team that hasn't scored a point yet.

Maybe they'll win Thursday; maybe they won't, but sooner or later, with spirit like that, the Blue Wave will begin to roll.

That's the brand-new nickname the Bass eleven adopted last week.

Capt. Bobby Keel, Jim Ransbotham and the others can't help but make the grade if the will-to-win is really important in football.

Yanks Capture Title

a fire under the tall right-hander in the fourth and sewed up the Series. With two down on strikeouts and Billy Johnson on base by virtue of a walk, Rizzuto arched the second of his hits into left field, and that brought in the juvenile, Brown, to bat for the ailing Bevens.

The Kid slashed a hot two-bagger into left on which Johnson easily scored to knot the count. With that, Gregg was through and Hank Behrman strolled in. He walked his first opponent, George Stirnweiss, and then Tommy Henrich, known around the Stadium as the "Old Reliable," pounded across the winning score with a clean single into right field.

Thereafter, to all intents and purposes, it was all Joe Page and his smoking fast ball. The big southpaw threw only one curve and one slider as he mowed the Brooklyns down. He racked up only one strikeout, but he had the Dodgers popping up or hitting easy rollers, and the Yank fielders didn't have a really hard chance as Page broke into the winner's circle at last.

Trying desperately to get a rally under way, Shotton threw three pinch hitters into the tussle, and trotted out pitchers like a man shelling peas, but it got him nowhere. The Yanks scored their fourth run off Joe Hatten in the sixth on Clark's pinch hit, and added another for good measure off Hugh Casey in the seventh when Johnson whaled his third triple of the series into deep left-center field and scored on a long fly by Aaron Robinson.

Gregg was charged with the loss, as he left the winning run on base for Behrman to try to dispose of in the fourth. Casey's two-inning stint marked the veteran Dodger's fifth appearance in as many days. He was credited with two of the losers' three victories.

But for Page's fine performance, the Yankees would have been in an embarrassing position. Shea, who won the fifth game on Saturday and so was making his second start in three days, simply didn't have it this time. Originally Harris had planned to start Bevens, but changed his mind overnight.

Though the Dodgers scored their second run off him in the second inning after he relieved Shea with two aboard and only one out, Bevens looked sharp, and was setting the Dodgers down smartly when he re-injured his pitching arm in throwing a curve to Gregg in the fourth. After a conference with the bench, Bevens was permitted to go on and retire Gregg for the third out on an infield roller, but it was plain the big fellow was through.

The fact that Harris knew he was going to have to bring in another hurler in the fifth provided the turning point of the game. Two were out when he sent Brown in to bat for Bevens, and it is extremely doubtful Harris would have made the move had Bevens not been hurt. Brown's hit paved the way to victory.

When Harris asked his bullpen catcher, Johnny Schulte, what relief chunker, if any, he was able to recommend, Schulte advised the manager that Allie Reynolds was throwing good stuff, but that Page didn't look so hot. "So I told him, 'Bring on Page,'" Harris recounted later with sweet reasonableness.

After starting with a rush, the Dodgers finally were forced to abandon their planned campaign to run wild on the sacks against the youthful Yankee catching staff. Aaron Robinson chilled them quickly Monday when, in the first inning, he rifled out both Ed Stanky and Pee Wee Reese as they tried to pilfer second.

The series, the third in succession to go the limit of seven games, was played throughout under perfect weather conditions, barring a gusty wind on opening day last Tuesday.

It started out to be the wackiest play-off ever. The first three tilts were so weird and peculiar they had to be seen to be believed. But the last four provided plenty of sound, thrilling baseball.

Babe Zaharias Wins Medal In Texas Play

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 6—(AP) — Mildred (Babe) Zaharias took medalist laurels in the Texas Women's Open golf meet Monday as expected with a 72, three under women's par.

Just a stroke back was Patty Berg, former National amateur champion and now Babe's cohort as a sporting goods representative. Patty had moved into position for a tie as she approached the final green, but muffed her chance with erratic putting.

Both pros made the turn in 35. The Babe will face Mrs. George Noble, Dallas, in her first-round match Tuesday and Patty is scheduled against Beverly Hansen, Fargo, N. D. Both qualified at 83.

Fort Worth's Polly Riley topped the amateur contingent at 35-40—75.

Wave, Tiger Coaches Point Out Injuries

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6—(AP)—Coaches of Tulane and Louisiana State football teams spoke sadly Monday about their squads' physical condition, and expressed doubt that their boys would be ready Saturday for games with a pair of strong Texas opponents.

Tulane plays Rice in Houston this week and LSU meets Texas A&M in Baton Route.

Addressing the Monday Quarterbacks' Club, both Bernie Moore, of LSU, and Henry Frnka, of Tulane, blamed poor physical condition for contributing to defeats of their teams last Saturday, and offered little hope for improvement in the situation.

"You can't imagine how badly this LSU team looked physically," said Moore in reference to LSU's 35-to-19 upset by Georgia. He pointed out that four first-string men plus Jim Cason, his ablest running back, were unable to play at all because of injuries.

"We can't get in shape," he continued. "We can't scrimmage. We're short on contact work."

Frnka spoke similarly. He described Tulane as "high as a kite" when the Greenies beat Alabama Sept. 27, but said "the kite didn't get off the ground" when Tulane lost, 20 to 0, to Georgia Tech last Saturday.

"We were licking our wounds from the Alabama game and didn't get in any rough work for Tech," he continued. "Our team is still nursing injuries and it'll be a tough problem getting ready for Rice.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning

That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Mt. Vernon Man Held in Slaying

Constitution State News Service.

MT. VERNON, Oct. 6—L. R. O'Conner, 50, Mt. Vernon lumberman, has been arrested in connection with the slaying late Saturday of J. C. Johnson, 30-year-old World War II veteran, Montgomery County Sheriff R. M. McCrimmon reported Monday.

Johnson, who was shot in the chest, died in a doctor's office, the sheriff said.

The two men had been riding around together in O'Conner's car and stopped at an ice plant, where Johnson left the auto, police said. The sheriff quoted witnesses as saying an argument ensued and Johnson was shot down when he approached O'Conner later.

Johnson, who saw service in the Pacific, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Johnson. He also is survived by two brothers, Harlow Johnson, of Miami, Fla., and E. T. Johnson, of Fort Bragg, and a sister, Mrs. Eddie Pierce, of Pensacola, Fla.

Funeral services were conducted Monday at Long Pond, seven miles south of Mt. Vernon. Burial was in Long Pond Cemetary.

Miss Viola Burks Dies at LaGrange

LAGRANGE, Oct. 6—(AP)—Miss Viola Burks, donor of Camp Viola for underprivileged children and a civic and religious leader, died Monday after an illness of several months.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in LaGrange.

Miss Burks was organizer and leader of the Business Girls' League, Home Service Secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, 1920-1947 and also Executive Secretary for several years, and Executive Secretary of the LaGrange Welfare Association for 15 years.

Eire's Banks Close

DUBLIN, Erie, Oct. 6—(AP)—Erie's nine banks closed all their branches Monday in what officials said was a move to prevent a threatened strike. The Government empowered the banks to remain closed Tuesday.

'Peaches' Free In New Divorce

RENO, Nev., Oct. 6—(UP)—Frances "Peaches" Browning, who personified the flapper girl of the early 1930s, was divorced here Saturday by Ralph N. Willson, scion of a wealthy Ohio meat packing family, it was disclosed Monday.

Willson obtained a default decree from the oft-wedding Frances Heenan Browning Hynes Civelli, whom he married on Millionaire Dick Conklin's lavish Break-a-Heart Ranch near Dayton, Nev., April 21, 1946.

He charged mental cruelty, a customary complaint in a Nevada divorce action. When his celebrated wife failed to put in an appearance, Dist. Judge William McKnight awarded Willson a default decree.

Phanton Gunman Adds Victim

Atlanta's phantom gunman has scored again.

His latest victim was listed at Grady Hospital Monday night as Wyman Moore, Negro, about 44 years of age, of 73 Rawson St., Southeast.

Det. Sgt. L. T. Bullard and Det. H. C. Newton said Moore told them he was walking on Butler Street near Baker when he heard what sounded like a distant pistol shot. A moment later, he said, he felt a stinging sensation in his hip and found he was bleeding from a bullet wound.

Moore was reported at Grady as not being seriously wounded, but apparently he had joined a growing list of more than half a dozen Negroes who have been shot by a phantom gunman on Atlanta's South Side during the past year.

Success Story

Ten years ago Lucille Ball was a $50-a-week stock actress at Columbia. Then the studio dropped her. But she recently returned triumphantly as costar with Franchot Tone of "Her Husband's Affairs."

Communication Rates

WARSAW, Oct. 6—(AP)—Poland Monday boosted telegraph rates 100 percent and telephone charges and parcel post rates 50 percent.

CIO Textile Officials 'Agree' to Anti-Red Vow

BOSTON, Oct. 6—(UP)—Officers of the Textile Workers of America, fourth largest CIO affiliate, announced Monday they would comply with one of the most bitterly contested provisions of the Taft-Hartley law by filing non-Communist affidavits.

The Textile Union this becomes the first major CIO group in the Nation to accept the Taft-Hartley ruling that labor officials must swear they are not Communists in order for the Union to qualify for services of the National Labor Relations Board.

The surprise decision was announced at a press conference by Emil Rieve, President of the Textile Workers and a Vice President of the National CIO.

Rieve said the Union's Executive Council had voted unanimously to file the affidavits after debating the issue for two days in a Boston hotel suite.

He said he would urge the CIO to indorse the non-Communist affidavits on a national basis when the parent group holds its convention here next week.

In a letter to Gen. Counsel Robert Denham of the NLRB, Rieve said in part:

"Our compliance with this section of the act is forced upon us and is in no way to be construed as an acceptance of or adherence to the un-American principles which underlie it.

"We do not depart from our stated convictions that major portions of this law, including the anti-Communist section, are unconstitutional. . . ."

Rieve said the Textile Union would demand wage increases of "at least 15 cents an hour" in the woolen and worsted industries when present TWU contracts with those industries expire next February. The new demands would affect about 150,000 textile workers, most of them in Eastern States, he said.
